

U. S. INDUSTRY
REPORTS SHOW
GAIN FOR 1926

All Indications Are That America Will Experience Record Year, Say Business Heads.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT
IN VARIED LINES

Rational Optimism Reflected in Opinions of Bankers. Boards of Trade and Realtors.

Chicago, July 1.—National prosperity held firm during the first six months of 1926 and the outlook for the last half of the year is good, according to leaders of basic American industries here.

Statements issued by bankers, realtors, board of trade and railroad men at the half-way mark reflect a tone of rational optimism throughout these lines of business, and barring unfavorable crop reports in August, 1926 seems destined to be a better business year than 1925.

John A. Bunnell, president of the Chicago board of trade, says the outlook for agriculture is bright.

"Sales of machinery and other articles which the farmer must buy are on the upgrade," he said. "Bank loans mirror the same prosperous situation. Hogs have reached a new high for over a year and hog producers have tended to increase their stocks."

Reports from two of the country's largest mail order houses show that sales have aggregated more during the first six months of the year than during any similar period. Total sales for these two houses were $221,000,000, compared with $187,300,000 in the first six months of last year.

James E. Gorman, president of the Rock Island railroads, which serves a vast agricultural region in the midwest, said that railroad prosperity was reflected more in the improvement of service and facilities than in profits.

"The railroads are giving the best service this country has ever seen," said Gorman. "Where railroad service is permitted to function naturally the industries dependent on that service will prosper."

Savings on Increase.
Savings deposits in the neighborhood banks of Chicago alone increased $9,000,000 between January and July, according to Marcus A. Aurelius, head of the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' association. Aurelius said he believed this situation would be found to be general in all of the industrial centers.

Arthur Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial banks, said profits might not be quite up to last year's, considering all lines of business the country over, but that a good showing had been made so far.

"I am confident that the end of the record at the end of the year will be a satisfactory one," he said. "Business is going on actively. Although nothing startling has occurred business now is better than business men thought it would be when they made their forecasts the first of the year."

Public Is Waking.
Frederick H. Bartlett, who deals extensively in real estate here and in other parts of the country, said the first six months of the year had seen a reduction in hectic subdividing and that the land business was on a sound footing.

"The general public is awakening to the safety of real estate as an investment," he said, "instead of viewing it as a get-rich-quick business." Although a late spring retarded early growth, reports from the south-west indicate that the wheat yield is good and that the farmers, especially in Kansas, will make more money than they did last year.

When Bobby Jones
Comes Home

We are all mighty proud of Bobby Jones, and candidly admit we are sort of pepped up over his coming home with the golf "bacon" from England. However, we have to go right along with our daily routine, and that means that we have to purchase certain articles today.

The easiest and most satisfactory manner to accomplish that task is to read the advertisements in The Constitution this morning.

You will find anything you desire offered in Constitution advertisements, and the prices are right; they are last for the day.

Serious Disagreement Exists in Geneva as U. S. Prepares To Submit Minority Report.

Washington Views Developments as Logical Sequence to Earlier Rejection of U. S. Proposal.

Geneva, July 1.—(AP)—No rupture, but a very definite and serious disagreement on naval problems stands out tonight as the big feature of the preparatory disarmament conference.

The American delegation to submit a minority report, setting forth that the United States cannot accept the report of the naval subcommittee, was announced at a meeting of the naval experts, which today approved the report of the drafting committee.

The American delegation refrained from commenting on any part of the document, but when it was adopted Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones arose and declared that the Americans were so far in disagreement that they could not accept it. At the same time he said the American delegation was ready to join any other delegation in submitting a minority report.

Others Also Disagree.
It later was revealed that the British, Argentine and Chilean delegations would associate themselves in a common dissenting declaration, and possibly Japan may join in this movement. This minority report will be introduced tomorrow at a preliminary meeting of the full military committee. It will emphasize the urgent necessity of studying all possible standards for comparing the strength of the navies of the various countries.

Only one standard has been accepted by the majority, namely, that the global tonnage of fleets, whereas the United States and Great Britain are convinced that comparison of tonnage by types or classes of combatant naval vessels should at least be included as one of the possible methods of measuring relative naval strength.

This standard of measurement was based employed at the Washington conference in fixing comparative strength of the navies of the United States, France and Italy, succeeded in getting the American proposal rejected, being supported in this by some nations which have no navies whatsoever. The British favor a standard of measuring by maximum tonnage in each class.

Japanese Proposition.
The minority ruling nations also defer from the majority ruling, contending that it is impossible or impracticable to differentiate between types and ships. The Japanese, in particular, hold that navies can be definitely divided into capital ships, aircraft carriers, auxiliary surface craft and submarines. Because of their disapproval of the committee's decision on the major naval problems the Americans declined an invitation to sit with the drafting committee.

French and Italian opposition to the class tonnage idea is generally interpreted as a manifestation of their dislike for the Washington agreement, which gave them inferior capital ship tonnage, and to their desire to get away from a conception of types of ships in order to be able to appropriate their total tonnage in the manner best fitted to meet their national interests. Particularly, it is said, they desire to concentrate submarines and light cruisers and a base in the Mediterranean to protect their African communications and to prevent the Mediterranean from becoming a "British lake."

Plans for Reception Today Are Uncertain Owing to Rules of Customs Service.

Customs Service Rules May Bar Atlanta Party From Boarding Aquitania at Quarantine.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

New York, July 1.—(Special.)—Time waits for no man and neither does the Bobby Jones Special. We arrived in Little Old New York on schedule time and were met at the station by a fleet of hostesses carrying us to this little hovel named for one of the most famous of all Knickerbocker families, the Vanderbilt.

Now now that the zero hour is at hand plans for the actual reception Friday of Atlanta's two golfing wizards, Bobby Jones and Watts Gunn, are not completed.

Tale of Uncertainty.
The United States very thoughtlessly established a customs service some few decades ago and therein hangs a tale of uncertainty for the hundreds of Atlantans who are waiting patiently the arrival of the giant Cunarder Aquitania. Customs rules may prevent the entire Atlanta delegation from boarding the Aquitania at Quarantine as had been planned.

It is expected, however, that the Atlanta and New York committees in company with Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Jones and Judge and Mrs. Will Gunn, will be allowed to board the ship from a cutter at Quarantine. In any case Bobby and Watts will receive the same collective glad hand from home folks whether it be aboard the ship or on the New York pier.

As soon as agents of the Cunard line can communicate with the captain of the Aquitania and custom officers can come to a conclusion as to what steps they will permit, definite plans can be made for the reception. Members of the committee do not, however, expect to be able to announce the schedule until early in the morning.

The continental enthusiasm is no whit dampened by the present uncertainty of the plans. The delegation is here to welcome Bobby and Watts and they will be welcomed in the morning.

GEORGIA WOMAN
DIES IN NEW YORK

Mrs. James Jackson, Widely-Known Clubwoman, Succumbs at Home of Daughter.

News of the death Thursday in New York of Mrs. James Jackson, formerly of Atlanta, and one of the most prominent women in club, social and church work in the state, was received in Atlanta Thursday afternoon. At the time of her death she was making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Webster Davis, of 76 West 105th street, New York.

Mrs. Jackson moved to New York about 10 years ago, after the death of her husband, Judge James Jackson, former congressman from Georgia and chief justice of the state supreme court. He was one of Atlanta's most distinguished citizens and she was one of the best-known women in Georgia.

A native of Missouri and a member of a prominent family, Mrs. Jackson met her husband at a Methodist conference and soon afterwards was married and moved to Atlanta, where she began at once active work in church and club work here.

She was at one time president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, and also was president of the Atlanta Woman's club. She did much toward organization of women's work throughout the state while president of the Georgia federation, and took an active interest in other civic work. She was one of the oldest members of St. Mark's Methodist church and was a member of the church at her death. She also was a member of the Nineteenth Century History class.

Mrs. Jackson had been in ill health for months before her death, and since going to New York has taken little part in public affairs. She was 64 years old.

Of four daughters, Mrs. William M. Slaton, Mrs. Ada Dawson and Mrs. J. G. Seuchling, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Davis, of New York, only Mrs. Davis survives her. She has several grandchildren and great-grandchildren now living in Atlanta.

The body will be brought here for funeral services Monday from St. Mark's Methodist church. Interment will be in Macon, beside her husband.

Pennsylvania Senator Insists O'Connor Charged Attempt to Vary Representatives.

O'CONNOR DENIES RELATING STORY

Wayne B. Wheeler and Charles Wood Give Testimony Concerning Dry and Wet Organizations.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP)—

Testimony that Frank X. O'Connor, Philadelphia magistrate, had told him of an offer of $75,000 for his support of William S. Vare in the Pennsylvania republican primary was given tonight to the senate campaign fund investigation committee by Senator George Wharton Pepper, defeated by Vare in the senatorial race.

Testifying at a night session, a few hours after O'Connor himself had denied telling such a story to anyone, Senator Pepper recalled for the committee the magistrate's conversation with him and emphasized it with the declaration that "this is as clear in my mind that it is as if it happened yesterday."

O'Connor Denied Story.
O'Connor was not present to hear the contradictory testimony, having been excused earlier in the day when Chairman Reed agreed with him that that he was not well. The magistrate had been recalled to answer the testimony of three Philadelphia newspaper men who said O'Connor told them of the offer to buy his support for Vare. He denied the testimony in general and in detail and added that he had told the story to no one.

Sensor Pepper told the committee that he had several interviews with O'Connor, "three of which stand out in my memory." On one visit to his home, O'Connor, the senator related, told him that he had been visited by Albert N. Greenfield and Vare, and O'Connor, he said, "even simulated how they 'approached him.'"

O'Connor told him, Pepper told the committee, that he had been offered $75,000 to go over to the Vare organization and that there had been some talk as well of naming members of the state legislature.

The O'Connor phase of the investigation, with which the committee is not finished, shared the spotlight at both day and night sessions with another delving into the activity of the Anti-Saloon league and also the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the league, and Charles S. Wood, national campaign

Time Change
Gets Approval
Of Committee

Council Will Act Monday on Move To Change City's Time.

Atlantans next week may have to move their watches up an hour if city council and Mayor Walter A. Sims concur in a measure which the councilmanic ordinance committee approved Thursday afternoon providing for placing of this city on an eastern time schedule.

Action of the committee followed a public hearing at which leading Atlanta citizens appeared, and at which proponents and opponents of the proposal expressed their views. Sponsors of the measure declared that many advantages would accrue to the city from the change, while those opposing it pictured Atlanta as a city of disrupted industry and a place in which chaos would reign if the change were voted.

The committee voted in favor of the proposal and will carry the measure to city council at its regular meeting Monday. Final action of the committee was taken in executive session. Among those contending for the change were Milton Bell, of the federal reserve bank; Syd Tiller, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; and Harry Root, president of the Atlanta Civic club. John Paschall, of the Journal, was the leading opponent of the measure.

Leaders of many civic organizations, banking, mercantile and industrial institutions, were present at the hearing. Practically all of these already have voiced approval of the time change.

The committee reported out favorably a proposal of Councilman Horace Russell, chairman of the committee, asking that special legal tal be employed to work in conjunction with the city attorney in an effort to ascertain whether, under existing state laws, the city can enact a zoning law which will meet the requirements of the constitution. A fund of $1,000 would be provided for this purpose if council and the mayor approve the resolution.

Expenditures for Nomination or Election Expected To Be Held Under $25,000 Maximum.

Action Reported To Be Favored by Democrats,
Republican Leader and
La Follette Group.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, July 1.—The senate probably will fix a limit for senatorial campaign expenditures before adjournment Saturday.

This action is favored by republican leader Curtis, by the democrats, and by the La Follette group because of the Pennsylvania disclosures.

Sensor Curtis has asked the senate rules committee to meet tomorrow morning to report out a resolution which would deny a seat in the senate to anyone whose campaign for nomination or election costs more than a fixed sum. The maximum figure probably will be put at $25,000, though some effort may be made to enlarge this limit for more populous states.

The rules committee has two resolutions, almost identical, offered by Neely, West Virginia democrat, and La Follette, Wisconsin progressive republican. Both provide that no candidate for the senate may spend either for nomination or election more than $10,000 or a sum equal to three cents per voter up to $25,000. Exemptions would be allowed for postage, personal traveling expenses and several other items.

Newberry Case Recalled.
The same limits were recommended by the Borah committee which investigated expenditures in the presidential campaign of 1924.

Because of the supreme court decision in the Newberry case, congress is

MILLER COMPANY
CONTROL CHANGES

Labor and Banking Interests Take Charge of Big Real Estate Investment Concern.

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Acquisition of control of G. L. Miller and company, one of the largest real estate investment houses in the country, by a combination of labor and banking interests, was announced today.

The new controllers will take charge immediately and are to form a holding corporation which will be operated jointly by banking and labor executives. Under the arrangement announced, G. L. Miller, founder of the company, will retire. Luke J. Murphy, formerly executive vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Cooperative Trust Company of New York, will assume executive management.

The company has branch offices at Atlanta, Pittsburgh, Knoxville, Chicago, St. Louis, New Orleans, Kansas City, Dallas, Memphis, Baltimore, Columbus, Boston, Cincinnati, Jacksonville and various other cities.

NO CHANGE SEEN IN LOCAL OFFICES.
Southern dispatches from New York of the change in control of the G. L. Miller and company was received in Atlanta Thursday night with much interest, the company having been organized here nearly 10 years ago. G. L. Miller, the president, being well known in Georgia and Florida where he has been active in business circles for more than a score of years.

National headquarters of the organization were moved from Atlanta to New York in 1922, when the company broadened its financial activities to cover the east as well as the south, where it rapidly gained a place among the largest dealers in first mortgage securities.

Southern headquarters of the company have remained in Atlanta, and a large organization is maintained in the Hurt building to handle southern sales and underwriting.

W. H. Pickett, Jr., assistant secretary of the company, in charge of the Atlanta underwriting office, stated Thursday night that the change re-

SENATE VICTORIES
ARE WON BY NYE
IN NORTH DAKOTA

SOLLIE IS WINNER
FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Incumbent Given Long And Short Terms; Non-Partisan Leaguers Sweep State in Primary.

Hanna and Hanley, Who
Were Supported by Administration Forces,
Concede Their Defeat.

Fargo, N. D., July 1.—(AP)—Headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, non-partisan leaguers scored decisive victories in the North Dakota republican primary, returns from virtually one-fourth of the state's precincts indicated tonight.

Coming from behind, Senator Nye had established a lead of more than 1,000 over L. B. Hanna, credited with the support of the administration, in the contest for the short term ending March 3, 1927, when 543 of the state's 2,167 precincts had reported the vote stood, Nye 22,507 and Hanna 21,414.

Hanna Lead Out.
For the long term nomination, 707 precincts gave Hanna 30,922 and Nye 29,057, but each return from the rural districts cut into the Hanna lead, with indications that it would become a Nye advantage long before 1,000 precincts were in.

In the gubernatorial race, Governor A. G. Sollie had 37,822 votes in 845 precincts compared with 34,956 for J. M. Hanley, Mandan, also termed an administration candidate. J. A. McGovern, Fargo, "left wing" non-partisan candidate, had 2,181 votes.

Recognizing the trend of the vote during the day, Mr. Hanna conceded Nye's victory, both for the short term and the nomination even while the senator was several thousand votes behind in actual tabulations. Hanley likewise conceded Sollie's nomination.

In the past 10 years, the republican nominations have been equivalent to election in the fall, despite occasional combinations of democrats and "real" republicans aimed against the league candidates.

Stone's Good Showing.
C. P. Stone, a candidate for the senatorial nomination, made what newspapers of the state termed a "surprising showing," although he ran far behind Nye and Hanna.

In the congressional contests, indications tonight were that the three incumbents—two independents and one nonpartisan—had been renominated on the republican ticket.

Besides retaining all the state office nominations they now hold, the non-partisans were making a strong bid for the three held by independents, but they remained the likelihood that they might get through by small majorities.

For congressional nominations on the republican ticket, 146 of 583 precincts in the first district gave O. D. Burnett, independent, 7,380 votes; Boyd 1,800, and Snowfield 2,537.

The second district, in 196 of 750 districts gave Thomas Hall, independent, 10,820, and Graham 7,414, while in the third district, James Sinclair, nonpartisan, had 1,914 votes in 34 precincts out of 828, while W. G. Owens had 1,158.

SENATOR GERALD NYE

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Senator Gerald P. Nye telegraphed his office here today that he had won his North Dakota senatorial contest by a large majority.

He said he had carried Richland, Hanscom, Sargent, Trail, Steele and other counties of the first district, which marked a political turnover.

Boosting the mercury to a level it has not reached in the past two weeks, July was ushered into Atlanta Thursday on the crest of a wave of heat that is slated to gather momentum today, according to A. While the Washington forecast for the state at large is for cloudy weather, today will be fair and warmer in Atlanta, according to Mr. Scott. The mercury probably will go as high as 95 degrees, he said. Thursday's high point was 92 and the minimum 69.

June was an abnormal month in point of both rainfall and temperature.

Montgomery, Ala., July 1.—(AP)—The Alabama mule, famous in song and story, added another feat to its long list of accomplishments yesterday.

London, July 1.—The Prince of Asturias, heir to the Spanish throne, is to be presented with three piglets, bought for him by King George, the Prince of Wales and Prince Maurice.

The prince's hobby is pig farming, and those to be given him by his royal British cousins are birthday presents. His birthday came May 10, but in view of his approaching visit and the difficulty of shipping the cumbersome presents, they were saved until his arrival with the king and queen of Spain from Madrid.

The king of England, the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary picked the pigs out personally and is believed they will be a suitable addition to the Spanish heir's collection.

Less than 24 hours before he was due to be electrocuted at Milledgeville for killing his mother-in-law, J. D. Batchelor, of Jones county, received a commutation of the death sentence from Governor Walker, who extended clemency to the condemned man late Thursday afternoon. Batchelor was in the death house at the state prison at Milledgeville when the governor saved him from death in the electric chair.

In his official order commuting the death sentence, Governor Walker said clemency was recommended by the trial judge, the solicitor general who prosecuted the case, and 11 members of the trial jury. He also pointed out the statement of a physician who testified that Batchelor was "mentally weak." Further reason for the commutation was the fact that the evidence showed the members of Batchelor's own family, including his wife and 9-year-old daughter, were chief witnesses against him and that there was much bitter feeling against him within his family.

Trying to Kill Self.
Batchelor killed his mother-in-law, Mrs. Fannie Anderson, during a family quarrel in August, 1925. He claimed his mother-in-law was shot accidentally. He said he was trying to kill himself when his wife grabbed the pistol and that his mother-in-law was shot. The chief witness against Batchelor was his 9-year-old daughter. After he was convicted, the man's wife appeared before the prison commission and protested against a commutation of the sentence. The commission declined to recommend clemency. Just before he announced his decision, Governor Walker conferred with Judge T. E. Patterson, of the commission, regarding the Batchelor case.

The governor heard an appeal Thursday for a commutation of a death sentence on Rufus "Mule" Hicks, Muscogee county negro, who is condemned to be executed July 13. Hicks was convicted of killing a prison guard in an attempt to escape. He was serving a 20-year sentence on a charge of horse stealing at the time of the killing and prominent Muscogee citizens asked that the death sentence be commuted on the ground that the first sentence imposed on the negro was excessive.

Sewer Improvement Move Launched by Committee In Asking for City Survey

First Step Taken When
$25,000 of Bond Money
Is Asked for Triangulation Survey.

By passing a resolution asking city council to anticipate $25,000 from sale of sewer bonds in order that a triangulation survey of Atlanta and its environs may be begun at once, the finance committee of council Thursday morning placed the matter squarely up to council at its regular meeting Monday.

It is expected that the recommendation of the finance body will meet the approval of council and that work may begin almost immediately. Expert engineers of the United States geodetic survey will assist in the work.

This is regarded as the first step in a mammoth sewer improvement for Atlanta which ultimately will result in expenditure of about $10,000,000 and will include a great disposal plant on the banks of the Chattahoochee river where the Proctor and Peachtree creek disposal plants will be combined and the present disposal plant sites abandoned. A great historic park on the site of the Peachtree creek plant has been proposed and has met with enthusiastic approval by high city officials. Councilman John A. White, chairman of the parks committee of council, also has approved the plan.

Salary increases aggregating $2,000 annually also were recommended by the finance committee and appropriations amounting to approximately $18,000 were approved.

Blacksmith helpers in the future will receive 60 cents an hour instead of the present scale of 55 cents if council and Mayor Sims concur in recommendations of the committee; two instructresses, two operating nurses and two night supervisors of Grady hospital will be given raises of $25 monthly; J. R. Owens, superintendent of Hemphill pumping station, and Bruce Baxter, superintendent of the city garage, and J. J. Barnes, city inspector of weights and measures, will be raised $25 monthly under the same conditions.

A fund of $10,522.30 for construction of an addition to the Steiner clinic at Grady was recommended. This will clear space for 15 additional beds at the clinic and will be used as an experiment laboratory in the fight of science against cancer.

Dead Atlanta dogs will be hauled in a new hearse following approval of council and the mayor. The committee voted a fund of $426.82 for this purpose. The committee also approved proposals for $500, respectively, for a Bobby Jones trophy and the Labor day parade.

The committee approved a proposal submitted by the police committee of city council which asked that sufficient funds to employ three additional policemen be provided. This was in line with action of the police committee announcement at its session Wednesday night to the effect that the bureau will be enlarged.

Franklin Goes 100 Miles in Low Gear

The Franklin motor car pictured above, driven by J. R. Martin, engineering expert for the Franklin Motor Car company, of Atlanta, left the offices of the company Thursday morning at 7:20 o'clock and completed a run of 101.7 miles, in front of The Constitution office at 3:16 o'clock, making the entire run in low gear in seven hours and 42 minutes. After the drive was finished Martin and Police Officer W. A. Buck found different parts of the engine cool enough to touch. The car used only 18 gallons of gasoline, averaging five miles to the gallon, and one-half pint of oil. The run was made at an average speed of 13.8 miles an hour. This test was made Thursday by every Franklin dealer in America in honor of the 25th anniversary of the Franklin Motor Car Company. Pictured above are (left to right) H. M. Vandevender, automobile editor of The Constitution and official observer of the test; S. B. Dodge, sales manager of the company; and J. R. Martin.

British 'Bookie' Failed To Pay When Jones Won

Jacksonville, Fla., July 1.—(P)—"Sweet are the uses of adversity,"—so goes an old saying. And if this be true, then several prominent Jacksonville business men have just undergone one of the sweetest experiences of their lives. It came about in this way:

Up in Atlanta there is a lad named Bobby Jones who plays golf considerably more than average well. Not so long ago he went over to England and entered a sporting event known as the British open.

British bookmakers did not know him as well then as they do now and quoted odds of 15 to 1 that he would not win the tournament. One enterprising agent called this business opportunity to Jacksonville and certain tired business men got together and thinned their wallets $500 worth. The money was duly cable to England.

Bobby won, and then began the business of spending, mentally, some $8,000. The tired business men waited—and then waited some more but to date no answering cable has been received. One more cable—this time of inquiry—was sent, and from London came the response:

It wasn't so much the money they bet. Most of the T. B. M. have lost bets before. It was the principle of the thing. Not only that. It will be a long, long while before mention of the word "golf" falls to bring chuckles in certain circles.

One business man, however, appreciates the joke. He sold his $10 bet, calling for a return of $160, for $140. The other fails to see a smile in the situation. His wife learned he had made a $25 bet, and when Jones won made her husband sit down and write her a check for $200, half his winnings.

Opinion was expressed that the same thing might have happened in other southern cities.

SHERIFFS' CONVENTION OPENS IN VALDOSTA

Valdosta, Ga., July 1.—(Special.) A large attendance of officers and representative laymen who are honorary members of the association from every section of the state, marked the initial meeting of the Georgia State Sheriffs and Peace Officers' association, which began a two-day convention here today.

The meeting was called to order at the county courthouse at 10 o'clock by President J. A. Beard, sheriff of Muscogee county. Rev. A. B. Lipscomb, pastor of the Church of Christ, delivered the invocation, and Judge J. G. Cranford, of the city court of Valdosta, welcomed the association to Valdosta.

Attorney General George M. Napier delivered the response to Judge Cranford and made the principal speech of the day. The attorney general praised the personnel of the association, declaring that in no state in the union were the officers more loyal and zealous in discharge of their duties. He said that while great improvement had been made in law enforcement in Georgia, there remained much yet to accomplish. Mr. Napier urged a greater public consciousness of the menace of law law enforcement, stating that public sentiment was not without influence in the American crime wave, and deplored the manifest sympathy so frequently manifested toward convicted criminals.

This afternoon members of the association were guests of the city at Twin Lakes where a barbecue was served. A special program for their entertainment at this popular resort was prepared by Burton Lee Mark, owner.

The business sessions of the convention, which were begun today, will be continued Friday.

LEASE OF BIG FOUR TO CENTRAL OPPOSED

New York, July 1.—(P)—Organized opposition to the proposed lease of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railway (Big Four) by the New York Central is planned by a group of minority stockholders representing approximately 20,000 of the 41,000 shares outstanding in the hands of the public.

In line with its program to effect a closer alliance of its subsidiaries, the New York Central last month proposed a lease of the "Big Four" at a rental to guarantee minority stockholders 10 per cent yearly in dividends. Approximately 91 per cent of "Big Four" common stock is held by the parent company.

A circular sent to minority stockholders opposes the lease on the ground that it will prevent the accumulation of any further surplus.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL HAS BIG ENROLLMENT

Athens, Ga., July 1.—(Special.)—Registration at the University of Georgia summer school Thursday reached the highest mark in its history at this period of the session. The enrollment was 1,780, with every indication of its passing the 2,000 mark before the term ends.

The total enrollment for the entire session last year was 1,731, and the highest registration since the summer school started was 2,050, and this mark will be exceeded this year unless all signs completely fail.

News of the acceptance of a position with the treasury department at Washington by James N. Stover, former Atlanta and for the past 19 years chief of the Providence, R. I. bureau of the United States steamboat inspection service, was received in Atlanta Thursday.

Senate Conducts Night Session To Hurry End

Washington, July 1.—(P)—Although the resolution providing for an adjournment of congress was held today in abeyance, there was every indication that the present session would be brought to a close this week.

Both the house and senate struggled along slowly during the day to clear their calendar on pressing business, and the senate held a session tonight in an effort to ward off the usual preadjournment jam. The house, however, decided to forego a night session, its leaders concluding there was not enough important legislation pending to warrant it.

One of the bills approved by the senate was the second deficiency supply measure on which adjournment Saturday appears to hinge. Its total was increased by the senate from $45,000,000 to $51,000,000, and as a result of amendments it was sent to the conference.

Little difficulty is expected in reaching an agreement on points at issue, and Chairman Madden, of the house appropriations committee, who led the successful fight last week against adoption of an adjournment resolution, has indicated he will offer no objection to the plan of leaders to quit at 3 p. m. Saturday, once the deficiency bill is on its way to the president.

Leaders expect to send the measure to the white house tomorrow, and the prediction was made that the adjournment resolution, reported by the house, was ushered into the chamber by both houses during the day.

Agencies in the house were so numerous today that it appeared that many members had concluded the session was as good as over.

With no important roll calls in prospect except possibly for one on adjournment, less than 300 of the 435 members were responding to their names, causing republican leaders some worry for fear a quorum would not be maintained up to the finish.

Representative Vestal, of Indiana, the republican whip, setting out to round up absentees of his party, dispatched telegrams to those in nearby states to hurry back to the capital, while the Representative Tillam, the republican leader, gave warning on the floor that adjournment might be impossible "unless members stay here and we can have a quorum within any reach."

Elberton, Ga., July 1.—(Special.)—The Kiwanis club has arranged with the Seaboard railroad to run an excursion to Atlanta on August 5, when it is proposed to take 500 school children from the town and county, with as many others as will go.

The excursion is in line with the club's educational program. The program for the day in Atlanta is being worked out.

CLEMENCY DENIED TO CHARLES PONZI

Boston, July 1.—(P)—Governor Fuller today denied executive clemency to Charles Ponzi on condition that he leave the country. Ponzi today telegraphed Governor Fuller from Houston, Texas:

"Will your excellency extend executive clemency to me, a fugitive from justice, oppression and persecution, conditional upon my leaving this country at once and forever? Reply respectfully solicited."

The governor's answer was: "No. Have signed requisition papers for your return."

CHARLES PONZI WINS FIRST LEGAL SKIRMISH

Houston, Texas, July 1.—(P)—Charles Ponzi won his first legal skirmish against extradition when Judge Walter Moneth here today granted a habeas corpus hearing and fixed the date for July 9.

Until this hearing has been held, Ponzi must be kept in Houston, regardless of the outcome of extradition proceedings against him.

Meanwhile as Ponzi's attorneys prepare to attempt to prove their allegations in the habeas corpus petition, charging Ponzi is being confined unlawfully in Harris county, Mrs. Ponzi is speeding toward her husband to aid him in his battle.

The petition also alleges that the bail set by Justice Campbell Overnigh last yesterday "in the sum of $20,000 is excessive and oppressive and beyond the power of Ponzi to secure," and asks that "bail be fixed temporarily in some such amount as may be reasonable."

"Furthermore," the petition sets forth, "your petitioner fears that he will be clandestinely taken out of the jail of Harris county and delivered to a Massachusetts officer without first having a hearing before the court, whereas he prays an order be issued commanding the sheriff not to take him out of the jurisdiction of the court."

Reds and Whites Reenact Scene Of Chicago's Birth

Chicago, July 1.—(P)—Soldiers' field, in downtown Grant Park, tonight had the appearance of a veritable woodland with thousands of pine and fir, hundreds of birch-bark trees and miniatures of the Chicago river and old Fort Dearborn. The transformation was occasioned by the presentation of "The Birth of Chicago," a historical pageant presented by the Loyal Order of Moose, in connection with the 38th annual convention here.

The pageant, which will be repeated each afternoon and evening during the convention, portrayed the rise of a great metropolis out of the ashes of a humble outpost stockade. Five hundred Indians, whose forefathers comprised the Great Lakes basin tribes in early days, came from reservations in various parts of the country to take part.

At the Coliseum tonight a class of several hundred was initiated while in another place, a large group of women was ushered into the Women of Mooseheart legion.

Barnesville, 2a, July 1.—(Special.) General Peter C. Harris, retired, of Washington, D. C., who is here visiting his sisters, Mrs. Della Harris Garrett and Mrs. John H. Quinn, made an interesting address to the members of the Leon Martin post of the American legion at their weekly meeting, the ex-service men and a number of visitors giving General Harris an enthusiastic reception.

General Harris as adjutant general during the world war made an enviable record and rendered much service to the United States and the allied nations. He is now devoting himself largely to the interests of the ex-service men and their families and his address here was greatly appreciated.

NEGRO CHOIRS NAMED TO SING AT LAKEWOOD

Travelers' Rest Baptist church, on Brown's Mill road, was picked Wednesday to compete at Lakewood park Sunday afternoon against Macedonia Methodist church for the rural colored congregational singing championship of north Georgia. It was announced Thursday night by Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association, which is sponsoring the contest, as one feature of the spectacular three-day observance of Fourth of July at Lakewood.

The Travelers' Rest congregation was singled out after more than 300 other rural colored congregations had been eliminated in a series of preliminary tests held during the last month to pick the two best congregational singing was best. A committee of white singers and song leaders, headed by County Policeman W. L. Riley, acted as the selection committee. Macedonia Methodist church was picked last Sunday.

UNUSUAL LEGAL TANGLE INVOLVED IN PRISONER'S CASE

The outcome of the case of Alfred Marciano, Italian, now serving a seven-year sentence in the Atlanta federal prison who is fighting deportation, is being watched closely by some 30 or 40 prisoners at the penitentiary.

Marciano's plight recently was brought to the attention of the Atlanta Legal Aid society, headed by G. F. Campbell and Louis Maritz, Atlanta attorneys. The attorneys have written to Washington and will attempt to reopen the case.

Marciano was born in Italy but has lived in America since he was four years old. He has his first citizenship papers and in 1923 was given the pen term. It appears that he was adjudged guilty of three indictments, charging him with possession of counterfeit instruments, manufacturing counterfeit revenue stamps and passing the alleged bogus stamps.

When adjudged guilty he was given seven years in each case, sentences to run concurrently. As American laws require deportation in instances where foreigners are convicted of two criminal offenses, attorneys for the Italian will argue that he was tried on one indictment and therefore is not guilty of two crimes. The case is expected to develop an unusual legal point, attorneys point out.

Marciano married an American girl and has a small child. His case was made public after investigations had been made by H. B. Bowback, Washington attorney, who is serving a term in the local prison for violating government banking laws.

Fire Losses Small In Rome During June; Building Permits Grow

Constitution Bureau.
Rome, Ga., July 1.—(Special.)—The small sum of $200 would cover the fire losses in Rome during the month of June, according to Fire Chief Taylor. The largest loss was on the last day of the month when the roof of a house in the fifth ward was burned.

During the month there were only nine fires.

Building Permits.
Rome, Ga., July 1.—(Special.)—Building permits for the month of June in the fire limits amounted to $88,820, according to the report today of C. B. Bradford, assistant chief of fire department, who has the issuance of the permits in charge. Building begun outside the fire limits exceeded $10,000.

These permits were issued in the fire limits, as against $18,290 issued last month. However, with several dwellings started under construction in the immediate suburbs of Rome, to preserve peace.

TO ASK CONGRESS TO PLACE JUNIOR REPUBLIC HERE

The Junior Republic of the South, a self-governing village for wayward boys and girls, dotted with farms, schools and workshops, will become a reality in the near future, if plans now under way for a government appropriation are put through.

The establishment of the big institution, patterned more or less after the St. George Republic of New York, is an undertaking of the Juvenile Protective Association of Atlanta, which, through its secretary, Rev. Crawford Jackson, has been engaged in child welfare work for more than a quarter of a century.

Present plans call for the introduction of a bill in congress which will provide funds to build all necessary buildings on a site of 103 acres at Ben Hill, 14 miles from Atlanta. The country is quiet as the government has taken energetic measures to preserve peace.

LIQUOR HALL MADE AFTER CHASE IN PARK

HUMAN FLY BURGLAR LOOTS APARTMENT

Search was being made by police Thursday for a burglar on whom they bestowed the title of "the Human Fly Burglar" because of his skill in robbing the second story apartment of W. C. Drummond, 18 West Harris street. Several valuable articles and $200 were stolen.

Investigating officers declare use of a ladder to gain access to the apartment was out of the question and the only way the robber could have entered was by scaling the wall.

Johnson and others led in discussing the "World Service Program." The session bids fair to be the best in the history of the district, leaders state.

My flashlight would keep me from being run down. Of course, I'd carry only a genuine Eveready! —(adv.)

This Will Tell You Why You Should Own a Franklin — NOW!

THOUSANDS of experienced owners of water-cooled cars have this year bought their first Franklins—and made the motoring discovery of their lives!

Other thousands of Franklin owners have continued, in Series 11, records of uninterrupted satisfaction covering 10, 15, even 20 years—and have experienced greater delight than ever before!

There is no group of owners in America so loyal and enthusiastic as the Franklin group. Why? These letters—taken from literally thousands on file at the factory—will tell you!

Now is the time to buy a Franklin! Its quality was never before so high—its style so outstanding—its performance so brilliant—or its price so favorable—as in the latest Series 11. And this great car can be owned on terms that make it the wisest investment and the easiest fine car purchase today.

Come in today—see the striking new cars—learn all the facts about them—take the ride of your life!

From Amy E. du Pont
"The best car on the market today. I have used Franklin Cars for 12 years, and in each successive case have been free from all trouble and have enjoyed the great comfort that only the Franklin can give. The new Series 11 is perfection in style, comfort and power."—Amy E. du Pont, Wilmington, Del.

End of the Search
"Before buying the Franklin I had owned 23 other types of machines, finding them all lacking. So I was searching, as it were, for one that would come somewhere near filling my requirements. The three Franklins I have owned have come nearer than any of the others."—Charles C. Falk, M.D., F.A.C.S., Eureka, Cal.

"In a Class by Itself"
"I do not think there is a car on the market which compares with the Franklin in distinguished appearance, low upkeep, riding quality and power, plus the satisfaction of owning a car that is in a class by itself. I state the above from 9 years' ownership and real test."—Dr. J. Clay Williams, Bristow, Okla.

Best of Fourteen
"I have found everything to be just as you advertise it. This Franklin is my 14th car, and I like it better than any I have ever had."—Harry W. Phillips, Supt. Public Construction, Davenport, Ia.

Crossed Rockies Five Times
"I have owned five Franklin cars. Have driven two from the factory. Have crossed the Rockies five times, been from ocean to ocean twice, and from Gulf to Canada; and Franklin has stood up all the time. It suits me."—W. A. McNeil, Pres. Hidalgo County State Bank, Mercedes, Tex.

Has Had Ten
"I have had ten Franklins and have my order in for another. 'Nuff said.'"—C. S. Eddy, Akron, Ohio.

"Last Word in Automobiles"
"Drove from Miami to Chicago—1621 miles—on eighty gallons of gas. Fine riding. All mountains in high gear. This is my third Franklin, and I am proud to own it. It is the last word in automobiles."—Frank B. Miller, Chicago, Ill.

"Good from All Standpoints"
"I now have my fifth Franklin, and it is the best one I ever owned. There cannot be too much good said about the Franklin car from all standpoints—comfort, pleasure, looks, endurance, speed, and last but not least, inexpensive maintenance."—J. B. Miller, Corsicana, Tex.

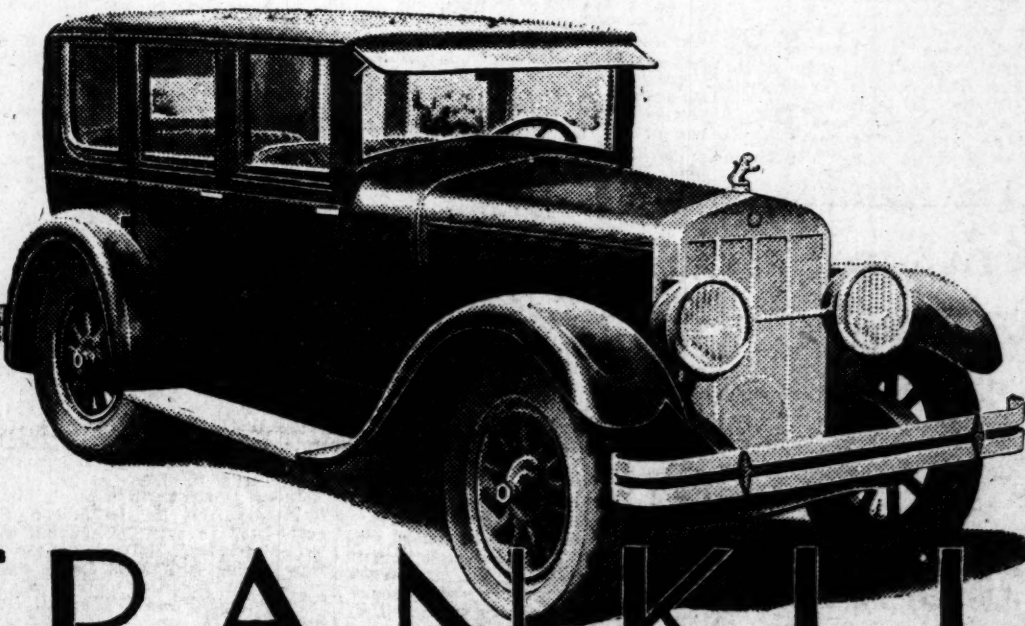

"Leads the Industry"
"I have firmly come to believe that for service, low cost of running, easy riding and driving, power, looks, and in every other way, Franklin leads the automobile industry. In time the public will see that it is the cheapest car in the end, besides being the best."—Dr. Edward Newell, San Jose, Cal.

Favorite Among Four Makes
"We have been using a Franklin Coupé for the past four months, and find it one of the most satisfactory cars we have ever used. At the present time we have a — a —, a Franklin and a —, and do not hesitate to say that the Franklin is our favorite car."—Glen Roy W. Scott, General Contractor, Keene, N. H.

His Tenth Car
"Bought my first Franklin in 1906, and am now running my tenth—the new model. So you see I bought all my cars on records of past performance."—S. S. Freeman, Alameda, Cal.

"Always on the Job"
"Rain or shine—cold or hot—it is always on the job. On a ten months' run of 14,456 miles, averages 16 miles plus per gallon of gasoline. That's performance, for the speed and power you have in the New Franklin. It has never 'used' a drop of oil that I can see."—Will O. Feudner, Gen. Mgr. and Treasurer, The Daily Republican, Rushville, Ind.

"Best in Every Way"
"Personally, do not think there is any car made that can beat the Franklin (or) follow it through snow, mud or rough roads. Think nothing of driving 300 to 700 miles a day—drove from Pittsfield, Mass., to Toledo, Ohio, 701 miles, in 19½ hours. Have driven all winter without chains. Can climb out of ruts 6 or 8 inches deep without trouble. Have driven over Lebanon Mountain on one occasion when nine cars using chains were stalled, and pulled out and passed them all without difficulty.

"My motoring experience began in 1901, and includes eight to ten years' professional and semi-professional driving. I have owned upwards of a hundred cars of all kinds, and the Series 11 Franklin is the most thoroughly satisfactory in my experience. I cover more miles in greater comfort and less time, and with far less expense, than anything I ever drove."—Hugh Drane, Athens, Tex.

Had Ten Other Makes
"I have for many years been sold on Franklin. Have had four; after trying out ten other makes. The first cost, when the public does not understand the superior merits, is all that prevents the Franklin from being the most popular car as well as the best car."—Dr. C. F. Bowker, Morris, Ill.

"Its Equal Not on the Roads"
"This is my third Franklin. I have driven it about 12,000 miles; and with the exception of a little trouble I had with my speedometer, no mechanic has yet touched the car except for the purpose of oiling it. For quick getaway in traffic, easy handling, low upkeep, uniform speed for long distances, hill-climbing and easy riding, I don't find its equal on the roads."—George A. Anthony, Kewanee, Ill.

"Fulfills All Expectations"
"I have not had an over-heated motor or any trouble whatever during the time I have owned it. In fact, I personally have not opened the hood in that time, although driving it myself. I have always driven a high-class car, and this one fulfills my expectations better than any other car I have had heretofore."—A. B. Nolte, Nolte Brass Foundry Co., Springfield, Ohio.

"Cannot Be Put in Words"
"I don't think that anyone can put in words just what your Series 11 is, and a person cannot find it out by 'asking the man who owns one,' either. It is a question of getting behind the wheel and taking a hundred mile trip. Then you really know what the Franklin is and what it will do."—C. L. Hufsmith, Vice-Pres., First National Bank, Palestine, Tex.

10,500 Miles—Trouble-Free
"I have driven my Series 11 Sedan 10,500 miles. Have not had the carbon cleaned, or the valves ground, or anything done to the motor, and it has the power, the speed, and the quietness it had when new. I am a Franklin booster."—Charles Acklin, Acklin Lumber Co., Waynesburg, Pa.

"110° and No Overheating"
"The cooling system is the most marvelous success of any automotive principle. I drove the car with wide-open throttle in Texas temperatures of 110°, all day, day after day, with no suggestion of overheating."—Paul Hunt, Dallas, Texas.

Comfort—Power
"The most comfortable-riding car I have ever had."—Joseph E. Way, Kennett Square, Pa.
"It has the power and getaway that one needs on country roads. A pleasure to drive."—Harry C. Litt, Abilene, Kans.

"Smoothest Running"
"The writer has been driving since the days of the steam-powered Locomobile, and Series 11 is the smoothest-running, easiest-riding of all cars I have ever driven, in addition to its economy of operation."—Roy W. Sexton, Pres., The Initial Co., Wytheville, Va.

"4 Years—No Repairs"
"Have owned a Franklin for 4 years and have never had one cent of expense except gas and oil. Mileage to date is 81,250. Original Goodyear cords still on. Have owned several makes of cars; the Franklin is 40% cheaper to operate."—F. J. Danner, Lawsville, Pa.

Declaration of Independence

Viewed by Thousands Daily

COPY STILL IN GOOD CONDITION

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, July 1.—One hundred and fifty years ago, Friday the continental congress adopted the Declaration of Independence, and the parchment copy which was signed a month later is in a glass-covered case in the congressional library on Capitol hill, blurred in spots but still in fair condition.

It is a shrine for the endless line of tourists who come here. An average of 3,000 a day enter the marble enclosure, and stare silently at the document. There is a hush about the place as in a church. A guard sits constantly on watch.

In all probability those who visit the library Friday will attach no special significance to the day, unless they are students of history in the number. But the continental congress adopted on July 2 the declaration drafted by Thomas Jefferson. The date is one of the neglected days of history. All the credit goes to July 4, when the declaration, encased on paper, was signed by John Hancock, president of the congress.

Even July 4 means nothing to the yellowed piece of parchment, which is protected from the light by a special process. Its birthday is several days later, just when history does not record. This parchment, prepared after July 4, was signed by most members of congress on August 2, a month after its adoption, but several members were absent and did not sign until several days later.

The document now occupies the best home it ever has had. For years it was buried in the state department. President Harding thought it ought to be on exhibition so everyone who wanted to could see it. The movement he started culminated on February 23, 1924, when the declaration was placed in its present shrine. It is enclosed in a bronze case, with bronze doors that swing outward. The case is just above the line of vision flat against the wall. In a reading stand, is the original draft of the constitution. A marble step is provided so that the intense heat of the sun at Flagstaff, Arizona, for several weeks by the bureau of standards, which approved it.

Federal Prison Head, Is Dead

Portland, Ore., July 1.—(P)—Luther C. White, 58, superintendent of federal prisons since April, 1925, died here today.

Mr. White became ill three weeks ago while attending a meeting of the parole board at McNeil Island, Calif. On his arrival here Monday he was taken to a hospital in a state of coma and failed to rally. He was suffering from a sinus trouble, resulting in a fatal thrombosis.

He was born in Vermont. His first prison records was done as superintendent at Sing Sing, N. Y. Later he was warden at Hart's Island, New York. He served as superintendent of industries for prisons of greater New York and purchasing agent for the federal mill of the Atlanta federal prison.

News of the death of Luther C. White, at his home in Portland, Ore., was received at the Atlanta federal penitentiary Thursday night. Mr. White had visited in Atlanta many times as one of the most popular federal officials at the United States pen here.

Warden John W. Snook and other officials of the penitentiary here Thursday night paid high tribute to his work and on receipt of the news of his death immediately sent programs of sympathy to his family. Members of the prison joined in sending the message and floral tributes.

Mr. White was called "the outstanding prison worker in the country" by Warden Snook. "He was well known to all the men and women who worked in the prison, and in all parts of the country," he declared.

The applicant, who was unable to attend the last meeting of the parole board at the Atlanta prison last May because of illness. He became ill while on a recent visit to the prison, and later going to his home in Portland, where he died.

Appointment of a successor to Mr. White, who was manifestly an affectionate father and a kind and generous man.

"The evidence and the atmosphere of this case convince me that it is not one for capital punishment. This is a case where the family and the community are so much affected that the solicitor general who prosecuted the case, the trial judge and eleven of the jurors earnestly recommended that the defendant be committed to the prison board for the following reasons:

Women's League Demands Equal Pay for Equal Work

EQUAL FOOTING WITH MEN WANTED

The problems confronting the working women are discussed in the following article written by Miss Elizabeth Christman, secretary-treasurer of the National Women's Trade Union League, which is now meeting in Kansas City.

BY ELIZABETH CHRISTMAN.

Kansas City, Mo., July 1.—In the labor market, women are not a sex, but an element in the highly competitive labor supply. Like any other such element, they are used to undercut competitors unless their labor is standardized as to hours and scale wages. For that they must bargain collectively with their employers, through trade unions, or the men have done, which means they must first be organized into unions. Because progress is slow, with peculiar difficulties where women are involved, we must have laws to relieve the worst of the hardships until the equal footing is reached.

The National Women's Trade Union League of America, a federation of working women which aims, among other things, to establish an equal industrial footing for men and women, has little patience with those theoretical ultra-feminists who talk about "industrial equality" as though it consisted of having all laws apply alike to women and men.

The fact that there are laws for women and not for men represents no discrimination between women and men in reality, for men do not need nor do they want the laws. Working women, we contend, should have them, whether men do or not, because women both need them and want them.

Equal pay for equal work is our slogan—equal hours, equal opportunity for jobs as well. But that is not a matter of mere legal equality or a phrase on a page of a law book. And the whole labor movement represents it when women who never had to work in their lives come trying to force away laws that we have, or trying to prevent us from getting others that we need.

We demand for working women not only industrial freedom, but freedom from theoretical feminists who insist on women's legal rights at the expense of their other and far more important economic rights.

No Candidate Favors Reducing Employees

States J. J. Brown

America, Ga., July 1.—(Special)—J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture of Georgia, was in America today and held a conference with approximately 250 of his friends and supporters, many of whom in the conference, it is reliably stated, being employed by the state department of agriculture.

The chief topic discussed, it is further said, was the commissioner's race for reelection. Newspaper reports were not invited to the conference, but after it had ended Commissioner Brown issued a statement which was published in The American Times-Recorder this afternoon.

In this statement he says that whether the number of oil inspectors is cut from the present number to half a dozen is a matter for the legislature to decide, but that there is not a man in the race at this time who is out clear-cut for cutting down the number of employees in the agriculture department.

Traveling with Commissioner Brown, who came to America from Albany, are J. D. Weaver, vice president of the Farmers' Union of Georgia, and F. A. Rowell, a member of the governors assembly who has already served many years as member of that body.

OFFICER KILLS NEGRO WHO RESISTS ARREST

In a hand-to-hand encounter with an unidentified negro at the garage of the Zakas bakery, 86 Garnett street, early Thursday night, Patrolman W. D. Nash shot and killed the negro, according to his report to acting Captain R. J. Brown.

Officer Nash, who is a supernumerary on the force, employed by the bakery company to guard the place because of recent burglaries, was concealed in a truck in the garage when the negro entered and began pulling the truck, Nash said. He called to the negro to halt and started to place him under arrest.

The negro resisted and picked up a brick which he hurled at the officer, almost knocking him down. "I reached for my revolver," Officer Nash said, "and he tried to throw it away from me. In the scuffle that followed I shot and killed him."

An inquest will be held at 9 o'clock this morning. Police had been unable to identify the negro late Thursday night.

MRS. KARL BOY-ED ARRIVES IN U.S. MINUS HUSBAND

New York, July 1.—(P)—Mrs. Karl Boy-Ed, American wife of the former German naval attaché at Washington, arrived today without her husband, on the liner Columbus.

He was sent home in 1915, after this government charged that he had engaged in activities in violation of American neutrality laws, and was refused a visa for this trip because it was felt that the elapsed time was too short.

Mrs. Boy-Ed, formerly Virginia Mackey-Smith, of Washington, was engaged to him at that time, but their marriage was delayed until 1921 when she went to Europe. Her father is Bishop Mackey-Smith.

Captain Boy-Ed tried until the last minute to obtain a visa, even boarding the Columbus at Cherbourg, but left just before the vessel sailed.

Mrs. Boy-Ed proceeded immediately to Washington with her daughter, Virginia Ida.

Michigan Students Charged With Robbery of Blind-Pig

STORY OF HOLD UP TOLD BY FRESHMAN

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Detroit, Mich., July 1.—How four students of the University of Michigan danced the Charleston with girls in a blind-pig at Farmington and Plymouth roads, early on the morning of June 1, and then suddenly turned on the applauding patrons, shot two, and robbed the rest of money and jewels valued at $1,500 to $2,000 was told today by Clarence Munro, 20, a freshman in the literary college of the university, according to his alleged confession.

Munro, who was arrested on his home in Ann Arbor, Wednesday, was arraigned today on a robbery charge, pleaded not guilty, and was held under $15,000 bond which he was unable to furnish.

The warrant also names Charles A. Johnson, 22, Ironwood; Lawrence O'Farrell, 21, Iron Mountain, and two unidentified youths, all students in the university.

Munro pleaded not guilty because he claimed he was sitting in a drunken stupor in a car outside the blind pig when it was robbed and did not participate in the holdup.

According to the alleged confession, "J. Fuller Gloom" was buried with Glee in St. Augustine.

St. Augustine, Fla., July 1.—(P)—Thousands of citizens attended a public ceremony here this afternoon in which "J. Fuller Gloom" was buried in the public plaza to symbolize an end of pessimism and doubt in this community.

"J. Fuller" was captured on the outskirts of the city, said Dr. J. N. Fogarty, mayor of St. Augustine, who made an address in connection with the "burial." The mayor declared the whole state of Florida was indebted to St. Augustine for catching Gloom and consigning him to the grave.

Thistles, weeds, faded sunflowers and bunches of sandspurs comprised floral tributes sent by the St. Augustine real estate board. City police and the municipal band headed the funeral procession and members of the board of trade acted as pallbearers, carrying the red and black coffin to its resting place to the slow beat of a funeral march.

Increased business among local merchants during the first six months of the year was the occasion for the ceremony.

Nothing in the way of formal entertainment is on the program for tonight, and individuals of the Atlanta party, augmented by several Georgians, are now making their homes in the big city, are busy following "the devices and desires of their own hearts," and anxiously watching the bulletin board for an announcement of definite plans for the celebration of the big event Friday when Bob and Watts and the rest of the victorious crew come home.

It is impossible to tell the exact time at which the Aquitania will reach New York but she is scheduled to arrive at quarantine at about 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and if she runs true to schedule she should arrive at the pier about six or seven o'clock.

"Who's the bird? What's he running for?"

"I dunno, mebbe he ain't runnin' fer nothin'. Mebbe he's one of them princes what's touring here."

Of course this exchange "waxed more of humor than truth" but if Bob Jones or Watts Gunn were princes in reality they would not have a larger retinue than was aboard the special and if they should run for office today they would be elected unanimously.

Sea Hard Fight Ahead.

Now that Bob and Watts have succeeded in their invasion of the realm of Britannia all the "boys" are busy in conjecture regarding their chances in the open next week.

This morning one "old timer" who usually "lites the pipe" and "lites his prophecies" said, "Bob and Watts are up against the hardest proposition in their respective careers. They will be forced to go into the greatest tournament of the season with their 'sea legs' still on and their nerves still stifle from the terrific strain of the Irish ocean. They will do well if they finish within the first three or four places."

We are inclined to agree with all the gentlemen on the ship except the last remark. Sea legs or no sea legs Watts and Bobby are dangerous in any tournament and the man who has been so successful in the past is a spurt of super-brilliant golf. That is our opinion.

Nunnally Company Recovers $7,500 Paid as Federal Tax In Decision of Judge Sibley

Unusual Point of Law Decided in Ruling; Attorney Rountree Explains Contention.

Through a decision handed down Thursday by Judge Samuel Sibley, in federal court, the Nunnally Investment company will recover $7,500 collected from that company by the government as a capital stock tax for the privilege of doing business. The decision was rendered in the case of the Nunnally Investment company against Josiah T. Rountree, collector of internal revenue, and in the case Judge Sibley decided a unique point of law.

The Nunnally company was represented by Daniel W. Rountree, Atlanta lawyer. Mr. Rountree said the suit for recovery of the tax, said to have been illegally collected, was brought against the collector following the regular course of procedure in cases of this kind. Where a tax is illegally levied by a city, county or state the taxpayer may resist collection by legal proceedings, but in the case of a tax levied by the government the only remedy of the taxpayer is to pay the tax and bring suit against the collector for its recovery.

In this suit, according to Mr. Rountree, the Nunnally Investment company brought suit for recovery of $7,500 claimed by it to have been illegal. Judge Sibley ruled in his decision that the company was entitled to recover this sum from the government.

tree, the Nunnally Investment company brought suit for recovery of $7,500 claimed by it to have been illegal. Judge Sibley ruled in his decision that the company was entitled to recover this sum from the government.

Origin of Tangle.

The tax was a capital stock tax for the privilege of doing business. The Nunnally Investment company is a corporation with but four stockholders. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nunnally, Winship Nunnally and Mrs. Frances Whistley. The capital stock of the company in 1921 amounted to $2,493,748. The company invested money by making loans of an investment nature and as a result of these transactions the assets of the company at the end of two years, 1922, amounted to $2,722,000.

It was the contention of the government that the company's operations came under the head of the statute imposing a capital stock tax for the privilege of doing business. The business was conducted in a private way by members of the Nunnally family in such a way as not to come under the head of this law. It was contended by Attorney Rountree.

"The Nunnally Investment company bought securities and made loans totaling some $2,500,000 for investment purposes only and for a nominal interest," Mr. Rountree said.

Judge Sibley held that this was not "doing business" within the meaning of the act of congress imposing this tax.

Sibley's Decision. "Aside from loans made and collected in my opinion no business was done other than that strictly pertaining to the ownership of property," Judge Sibley ruled. "The increase was due not to management or trafficking for profit but to natural enhancement in cases and mostly to normal dividends and interest on stable stocks and bonds. This would not render the company liable to the corporation stock tax. As to loans, money lending is often a business. It is a large part of the business of banking corporations or a building and loan company, but may be only the permanent investment of cash, as in the case of bonds and long-time loans."

In the case Judge Sibley declared that a close corporation composed of but four stockholders of the same family, had loaned large sums to each of the stockholders. Whether the loans made were in approximate proportion to their ownership of stock does not appear. The great bulk of them were in existence at the beginning of the tax year in dispute and remained unchanged. Judge Sibley said he perceived also that other loans had been made and repaid.

"This, however, is not an effort to make money out of the public for the stockholders but is to be considered rather a tentative use by stockholders of what really was their own. It does not seem to me, while it involves large amounts, to be putting the corporation into business within the intent of congress," Judge Sibley ruled.

Probe of Tariff Body Adjourned Until Next Fall

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—The senate's tariff investigation was adjourned today until next fall. Senator Harrison, chairman of the investigating committee and democratic leader of the senate, said he would continue to oppose confirmation of the two nominations to places on the tariff commission, recently submitted by President Coolidge.

The nominees are Commissioner Brossard, already serving on the commission under recess appointment, and Sherman J. Lowell, of New York. Testifying at today's session of the investigating committee, Commissioner Brossard flatly denied charges made against him by Commissioner Costigan and Dennis and former Commissioner Culbertson.

He said he never had been employed by Senator Smoot in any capacity, had not been associated in any manner with the sugar interests and did not even know the sugar lobby in Washington.

He said he had not attempted, as charged by Commissioner Dennis, to force the flexible provision of the tariff law, but favored the provision and believed it would work satisfactorily.

He denied that he delayed the cotton history report or was dominated by Chairman Marvin, who he said never had attempted to dominate any member of the commission. He had "leaned backwards to favor his enemies." He also denied that he had attempted to stack the commission staff with natives of Utah.

In answer to charges that he had influenced the sugar report, he declared he had taken no part whatever in preparing the report, and that his only connection with the sugar case was as a staff investigator of the sugar beet industry.

"Commissioner Costigan has suggested that it was improper for Commissioner Baldwin and myself to participate in the taximeter and protractor cases because we had not sat in on the public hearings," he said. "He forgot temporarily that he himself participated in the hearings, and had not sat in on the hearings."

Rich and Brothers for more than 40 years, who has been retired on a pension, celebrated his ninety-third birthday Thursday by visiting the store and chatting with fellow mates, who served the country with him during the last few years before being pensioned.

Mr. Crawford was badly bruised several days ago when a boy riding a bicycle ran into him, but outside of a bit of soreness he was again out and ready to go in a day or so, he stated Thursday.

During the course of conversation during his visit with former fellow workers Thursday, Mr. Crawford stated that he was feeling better than ever and unless something unusual happens, he intends to live to be 100 years old, and has only 10 to go.

TEXAS FLEA CONTINUES TO INVADGE COTTON FARMS THROUGHOUT GEORGIA

Louisville, Ga., July 1.—(Special.) The Texas cotton flea has made his advent into Jefferson county, according to information furnished by the state department of agriculture, which sent an expert here to look at cotton fields of E. P. Rivers, T. H. Rivers and R. D. Little, prominent farmers in the Grange district.

These farmers had evidence of the flea's presence, and immediately wired the department of agriculture to send an expert here to look over the situation. This the department did.

The expert stated unequivocally that the flea is here. He suggests poison for the pests and states that a mixture of four parts of sulphur to two parts of calcium arsenate will kill the pests.

FLEA NEW PEST AT ADAMSVILLE

Adamsville, Ga., July 1.—(Special.) The hopper flea is in his work in the cotton fields here. The farmers are very much distressed over the damage done, for the pest being a new one they are at a loss as to what to do.

The impression is that it is more disastrous to the cotton than the weevil.

FLEAS ATTACK COTTON AT TAYLORSVILLE

Taylorsville, Ga., July 1.—(Special.) Though only a few boll weevils are seen in the cotton fields in this section, the Texas flea is damaging the cotton on some farms. One farm will be infested with the flea, while maybe an adjoining one will be clear of it.

The expert stated unequivocally that the flea is here. He suggests poison for the pests and states that a mixture of four parts of sulphur to two parts of calcium arsenate will kill the pests.

Mother Admits Durkin Engaged In Booze Selling

Chicago, July 1.—(AP)—The mother of Martin J. Durkin first witness in his defense against charges of murdering Edwin C. Shanahan, federal secret service man, told a jury today that her boy sold liquor from about the time of his 20th year.

A large woman, clad in black, Mrs. Durkin told on direct examination of "Marty's" loyalty to her, of his service overseas in the world war after he had enlisted at 17, and of how her son gave money to her often in amounts of from $150 to $300.

More nervous on cross-examination, she told the prosecutors that Durkin went into the second-hand motor car business for himself after a period of working on the railroad. His first car, she testified, he bought for $450.

The state's attorney strove to develop that the cars he handled were not all purchased.

"Did you see a bill of sale for the car?" She said she did.

"Where did he get the money to buy the car?" "Earned it on the railroad, and saved it. He was a man."

"He didn't get it running booze did he?" "Yes, he sold booze," the witness replied, drawing herself up.

The prosecutor developed that Marty was "about 20" then.

"Did he transport liquor?" "Well, he sold it," was mother answered.

Mrs. Durkin said on cross-examination that she accompanied her son, Ben, to the Chicago Police station, where "Jackie" Werners to Hollywood, Cal., by motor car and that Martin sold liquor there.

Court rulings halted testimony to whether he engaged in other activities on the coast and also as to whether "you didn't know he was violating a federal law."

BOYLES HEARING SET FOR JULY 26

Birmingham, Ala., July 1.—(AP)—July 26 has been set as a tentative date for the hearing at Mobile of Aubrey Boyles, former district attorney there, it was announced here today by Judge W. I. Grubb, who will hear the proceedings.

The hearing will determine whether Boyles will be allowed to practice law in the federal courts.

40,000 WORKERS IN CLOAK AND SUIT BUSINESS STRIKE

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Scenes reminiscent of the great garment strikes of 1922 and 1925 were acted in the metropolitan district today.

Forty thousand union cloak and suit women, a large percentage of them young girls, walked out in the latest struggle in the garment industry. Sixteen hundred shops, which make 75 per cent of the ready-to-wear cloaks and suits sold in the United States are affected, including some in New Jersey.

Activities during the first day of the tie-up gave no indication of any immediate settlement. The strike last year, involving approximately 30,000 workers, lasted four months. The 1923 strike, involving between 30,000 and 35,000 workers, lasted three weeks.

The present strike is unusual in that the workers are not striking against their employers, the manufacturers, but against the jobbers who have no employees, but control the output of the shops affected. The workers' demands include a 40-hour week instead of the present 44-hour week, increased wages and a guarantee of 36 weeks' work a year. They are members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union.

GORE RESENTENCED TO DEATH IN CHAIR

Mell M. Gore, Buckhead barber, was resentence Thursday by Judge John E. Humphries, in Fulton superior court, to die in the electric chair at the state farm at Milledgeville on July 16 for his part in the murder on December 19 of William H. Cheek, Peachtree road grocer.

The remittitur from the Georgia supreme court affirming the verdict and judgment of Fulton superior court as rendered on January 21 and denying a motion for rehearing of the case, was received Thursday morning by courthouse attaches.

Gore, 22 years of age, who has been held in Fulton tower pending decision of the higher court, was arraigned before the bar of justice. With his eyes leveled on the court, his voice weak but without a quiver, Gore arose and received his sentence without signs of emotion.

Addressing Court. "Your honor and friends," he said. "I don't mean to claim that I have been treated unfairly on the part of the court. I think I have had a fair trial and everything that I am entitled to under the law, but I can't help but feel that this sentence ought not to be given because Jack Wilson planned the crime and did the actual slaying."

"For this reason, I can be pardoned for taking issue with the sentence of the court, feeling as I do that no blood has been shed by my hand. I know that I have stepped aside from the path of right living but never for a moment have I had the thought of murder of anyone."

"As things have turned out, strange to say, my imprisonment has been a blessing, because since the tragedy a great change has come over me. I realize that disobeying the laws of God and man does not pay, and that righteousness is the only road to travel. I have accepted Him as my personal savior and guide, and since I have been behind these prison walls I have been a blessing to know that the Lord has forgiven and blotted out my sins. Ready to Die. "Notwithstanding all this, if it is the will of the law and the Lord that I should die on the appointed day, I will go to my death with a smile, for I know that He has a home up yonder waiting for me."

Attorney W. A. James, chief defense counsel, stated Thursday that he would file another motion for a new trial on the ground that the law establishing electrocution as a means of execution in Georgia is unconstitutional.

With Gore now facing the death chamber, there are only three ways remaining by which he may escape the extreme penalty. His attorneys can file an extraordinary motion for a new trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence; an appeal for clemency to Governor Clifford Walker can be made; the supreme court of the United States can be asked to consider the case as a view of granting a new trial.

History of Case. Gore was indicted jointly on January 1 with T. R. Berry, Buckhead youth now serving a life sentence for his part in the slaying, and Jack Wilson, fugitive gunman, who the youths claim fired the fatal shots in the robbery of the Peachtree road grocery which resulted in the death of Cheek. Ruby Ray, girl companion of the trio, was convicted as an accessory after the fact to the robbery and now is serving a six-year term in the penitentiary.

The Buckhead barber was found guilty of murder of the first degree and was sentenced by Judge Humphries in Fulton superior court on January 21 to die in the electric chair on March 12. Motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Humphries and attorneys for the doomed youth appealed to the Georgia supreme court.

According to evidence in the case of Gore and Berry, Gore and Jack Wilson entered the grocery store shortly after dark, and in the presence of Mrs. Cheek and her children, shot Cheek down.

ATLANTA-MACON ROAD.
It is gratifying that the state highway board has awarded a contract for concrete paving through Clayton county, on the Atlanta-Macon highway. Bibb has agreed to pave through Monroe and all of the other links have been provided for except the comparatively short stretch through Henry county.

There is not a more important link in the state's highway system than that between Atlanta and Macon. For several years the urgency, for economic reasons, for completing this link has been stressed. It's completion is now apparently in sight.

Some definite step should be taken at once to have the few miles of the Henry county link paved simultaneously with the other links so that by January 1, 1927, as contemplated, the entire highway between Atlanta and Macon will be an unbroken band of concrete. It is understood that Henry county is able to provide her quota. If not, the state board should be able to find some fair and equitable method for financing her quota—if necessary by a pledge of the one-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax allocated to counties.

The early completion of a concrete highway from Chattanooga to Atlanta would be another important step toward getting at least one year-around thoroughfare through the state. It should be contracted all the way through with as little delay as possible, and certainly every precaution should be taken this summer to prevent a recurrence of the situation that caused so much annoyance, and so much bad advertising for the state last winter.

Whatever may be one's views as to the best methods for financing through-state highway construction in order to get a coordinated system at the earliest possible moment, every citizen owes it to the state, and to his own best interests, to give the highway board every cooperation consistent with the laws under which it operates. We need connected highways, and realizing the impossibility, under any circumstance, of getting an all-paved state system within any period of only a few years, we should at least do the next best thing—complete one or two through-state highways at the earliest practical moment, and then remove the actual mud sectors all over the state. By the latter process highways may be negotiated in bad weather, even if every other mile is concrete.

It is heartening that the completed Atlanta-Macon highway is in sight within the next few months.

FORWARD STEPS.
There is a decided movement in Georgia toward municipal developments, and especially in the larger cities.

In special elections held in Savannah and Chatham county Wednesday an overwhelming majority was piled up for city improvement bonds to the amount of $4,400,000, and a county school tax levy of five mills increase was authorized in the country precincts with an equally heavy majority. The latter will add $345,000 a year to school maintenance—the city and county system being unified—and the bond funds will go for paving, sanitation and a better system of financing. The city's floating notes to the extent of $600,000 will be retired.

Savannah and the county took, together, a most commendable forward step, and the heavy vote of $4,000 in a registration of 10,000 in Savannah proper shows the deep interest shown by the citizens. That the negative vote was negligible also illustrates the cooperative spirit in Georgia's port city that is prophetic of progress.

With an even heavier majority the city of Rome authorized a $225,000 municipal issue Wednesday for paving, city parks, fire extension and schools.

These are unmistakable evidences of a spirit that will put Georgia where she belongs in the procession of progress if it is continued far enough, and to reach out and embrace the much-needed state improvements, such as a coordinated system of highways.

Street paving is essential to a city. School expansions are essential if the demands overreach the existing capacities. The same method of financing that is sound for a city is sound for a state.

We commend Savannah and Rome and every other municipality in this state that sees the necessity for internal improvements, and then quickens the spirit of the people to a point where they will be secured—and by the process that every great business enterprise adopts, the capitalization of credit.

COST OF INEFFICIENCY.
Recently The Constitution published several communications relative to the high insurance rates on automobiles in Atlanta as compared to other cities. Ernest L. Rhodes, a prominent Atlanta wholesale merchant who spends considerable time each year in Colorado, opened the discussion with a statement that two cars of the same make and purchase price were insured for the same amounts at comparatively the same time in Atlanta and in Colorado Springs. The Atlanta rate was decidedly higher. Explanations were made—the only one that could be made—that the loss ratio in many other cities, hence the rates, based on loss ratio for either theft or traffic crashes, are comparatively higher. Reference was made to Richmond—a city in the same class with Atlanta—where it was alleged the rate is lower. Smyth Brothers, dealers in horses and mules, had moved to Atlanta from Richmond. The statements of insurance rates on automobiles being higher in Atlanta than Richmond so attracted their attention that they wrote to their old insurance agency in Richmond for the facts. They got them. The theft rate on a Ford car in Richmond is $1.20 a hundred. In Atlanta it is $4 a hundred—almost four times as much.

Why? We publish Smyth Brothers' communication on this page, and the reply they received from their old Richmond insurance brokers. It is stated "why" very plainly. The differential is predicated on the theft loss ratio. Almost four times as many cars are stolen, without recovery, in Atlanta as in Richmond. The explanation is plain enough. But think of the cost of inefficiency! Atlanta automobile owners are paying out hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in insurance rate increases because in Atlanta we do not prevent car thefts as in other cities—as in Richmond to illustrate with a concrete example.

Who is to blame? There is a responsibility somewhere. It should be traced, and the fault remedied at once.

BLOCKING JUSTICE.
The Brooklyn Eagle is up in arms about the delays of justice in the Fall-Doherty-Sinclair oil lease indictments. It says:

"In the beginning the oil scandal was a scandal of the administrative branch of the government. Cabinet officers and others of wealth and power were involved in the disgraceful bawling away of public resources. Today the oil scandal is a scandal of the courts. It is one more concrete illustration of the way in which justice is obstructed through the inability of men of wealth to take advantage of legal technicalities to defeat the purposes of law."

There is good reason for this complaint. More than two years have elapsed since these men were indicted and yet they not only have not faced trial, but there is no likelihood of immediate action on the criminal charges. The fact reveals a most reprehensible situation, as grave as that existing at the time of the alleged crimes, by which they were permitted to conspire in the leasing of the government's naval reserve lands.

The Constitution has repeatedly charged that the delays in court trials, the opportunities under our laws for postponements, the granting of new trials, and the complicated technicalities by which trained lawyers can indefinitely defer final action, are responsible for the crime waves and the widespread disregard for law. The laws give the criminal every chance for evasion. It does not so protect the state, society or the direct personal plaintiff who must innocently suffer from the infraction of law by the guilty.

Chief Justice Taft, Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes and other great legal minds have declared that criminal law procedure in this country is little more than a farce. Bar associations have denounced the situation, and students of jurisprudence have made reports filled with recitals of the injustices of the present system, and with recommendations for correcting the evils. But they get nowhere. Remedies have been prescribed but the results show no improvement.

There will never be an appreciable arresting of crime until the United States either adopts or profits by the English system which prevents by law the evasion of law by the criminal properly tried and found guilty.

Lights of Amsterdam
BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

More than Rotterdam, this city has all the characteristics of a world capital. The population is a million, but the aspect of the squares, the main drive and the station to the Palace square is the thing that conveys the metropolitan atmosphere.

Yet in contrast with the spacious drives is the main shopping street, the Street of the Calves, which is so narrow that two people with their hands outstretched could touch the opposite sides. No vehicular traffic is allowed here. In most of the shops English is one of the chief languages spoken, the same with all the big mercantile establishments. If The Hague takes its cue from Paris, Amsterdam imitates London.

Along the big quays where the boats from the Dutch Indies dock the air is surcharged with the delicious aroma of Java and Mocho from the coffee roasting establishments. A little outside Amsterdam is the city of Harlem, center of the tulip culture.

When approaching Amsterdam every traveler on the Paris express opens his window and the perfume of a million flowers is wafted inside. The spectacle is one of unparalleled beauty. Ranged in streaks of yellow, red and blue, the country resembles a gorgeous flamboyant carpet.

When you see the people kneeling down and tending with their bare hands every patch of soil, carefully patting it and smoothing it, you get an idea what it means to love the land. The land is their most precious possession. For it they live and die.

Georgians Ready To Leave As Soon as Congress Quits
BY SAM W. SMALL.
Washington, July 1.—(Special).—It appears certain that congress will adjourn at 3 o'clock or soon after that Saturday afternoon. Georgia members are ready to depart for home, some to look after interests threatened in September primary, others to show gratitude to their constituents for the absence of opposition. It is a straw as large as a fence post and shows that wet and dry referendum sentiment is becoming something stronger than a balmy zephyr.

Those who shall be returned to the 70th congress are fairly sure to belong to the majority and advance to commanding committee and floor positions. Still, with the championing of a policy that is anathema to the anti-saloonist in his come-back against them. Still and all nobody doubts that Wisconsin is a plural as New York or New Jersey.

All the golfing world here in the capital is eager to get a look at Bobby Jones and his triumph over the links. They are hoping he will break his journey home long enough here to give them a voice in the glory choirs and to welcome him back to the good old U. S. A.

The West Point federal building seems to be the only one in Georgia provided for in the second deficiency bill just passed. But the Georgia hope that Secretary Mellon will agree to other allocations out of the hundred millions fund that he has discretion to partition.

Why Atlanta Pays More for Insurance Than Richmond, Va.
Editor Constitution: I noticed an article in your paper recently in regard to difference in Atlanta insurance rates and other cities.

For theft on a Ford car the rate in Richmond is $1.20 per $100 and in Atlanta the rate is $4 per $100. We understand the reason the loss experience makes this difference is on account of the difference in loss experience.

We are inclosing a letter we had from an insurance agency in Richmond, Va. It says that the rate here is $4 per $100 and that the rate in Richmond is $1.20 per $100. It says that the rate in Richmond is $1.20 per $100 and that the rate in Atlanta is $4 per $100.

Looking and Listening
BY SAM W. SMALL

One who listens closely here in Washington these days learns that an intensive campaign is already on foot to "sell" Governor Al Smith to the democratic party of the country as our next presidential candidate.

The eastern bloc, with Pennsylvania, Illinois and Wisconsin added, has determined to work every trick in its repertoire to make the New Yorker the one and only "best bet" when the national democratic convention gets into action in 1928.

That Smith is the most popular democrat in the region south of the Ohio and north of the Potomac, and with the wet democrats in the Chicago area, is unquestionable. That he has been an able and successful governor of New York for three terms is also undeniable. His personal conduct is as democratic as anything that ever came out of the east coast of Manhattan. His partisans think these things are sufficient to qualify him as the premier of the party at large and commend him to the majority of the nation. He has also the two distinctions of being the most eminent Roman Catholic layman and the most rabid "wet" in the republic.

The question is constantly asked how those two facts will affect him among southern democrats? The answer from southern sources is very unanimous: that for can look for scarcely any support from the party for the nomination. The democrats of that region are assumed to be unalterably dry and anti-Catholic in their sympathies.

Granting all that, the Smith men ask, if he is nominated, how will the south act? Will not the devotion of the southern democrats to the party overbalance their objections to a candidate because he is a wet and a Catholic? And to that question they get entirely opposite replies. Some southern leaders contend that the proposal to nominate Smith will arouse a religio-dry insurrection that will sweep the rank and file, and that should be the nominee he would certainly "split the solid south" and lose the electoral vote of a majority of the southern states. Other leaders from the south, while strongly opposed to the nomination of Smith, are yet certain that southern democrats will support him against any republican opponent.

You may take your choice of those opinions.

The acknowledged plan of the Smithites is to repeal the old two-thirds rule and the unit rule, and stake his chances on the new majority vote in the convention. They admit that he cannot hope to get the nomination under the two-thirds rule. So that it is fairly certain that in every state democratic convention in 1928 the paramount issue will be abolition of or adherence to the two-thirds rule in making nominations.

There is a present trend in favor of repealing the rule, but it is promoted by partisans of both Smith and the unit rule. But the Georgia man can command a majority, but cannot get two-thirds in the convention. But the common run of democrats are not so sure of the strength of the probability is that they will hang to the traditional rule.

Growth of State Business Is Told By City Builder
The July issue of The City Builder, which came from the press Thursday afternoon, provides a remarkable group of articles by leading business men of the state estimating general mid-year conditions in Georgia. The issue is a valuable contribution to a healthy condition in the business life of Georgia. There is a perceptible upward slant in surveys involved. Raymond A. Kline, of the Atlanta Paxon-Stokes company, affiliated with R. H. Macy, contributes the leading article of the July issue, telling of steady growth in the retail trade and of gradual increase in sales which is expected to continue through 1928.

"Atlanta is prosperous, and we have many reasons for being pleased about our business in this section," continues Mr. Kline.

C. Arthur Kitchings, president of the Atlanta Wholesale Merchants' association, tells of a remarkable growth in the wholesale field for Atlanta during the first six months of 1926 and he points to a fall business which will go far beyond anything in previous years.

"The 1926 farm outlook is more hopeful than usual at this time of the year," writes J. Phil Campbell, of the State College of Agriculture. "We bid fair to have the best year of all-around farming Georgia has known in a long time."

Hal Stead, of the Atlanta Georgia, writes about building operations in Atlanta and the state. Other leading articles are "The Retail Trade in Georgia" by Herbert Hoover; "The Marvelous Development of the South" by C. O. Thompson, of Miami; "Jacksonville, 1926" by Robert H. MacGinnis, of Jacksonville; "Rails Play Important Part in Georgia's Progress" by Victor Barron; "Georgia's National Egg-Laying Contest," by A. M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture; "Telling the World Georgia's Moving Story" by Louis D. Newton; "Comic Opera for 1926" by Success; "The Pioneer Laundry in the South," by Paul Hinde. The cover of the July issue is a reproduction in color of the new Georgia State Paxon-Stokes company department store on Peachtree street. A page is devoted to Bobby Jones and there are numerous other features.

Daniel, pastor of First Baptist church, officiated, and interment was in Oakland cemetery.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WM. BRADY, M. D.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN TORPID?
A little anatomy or physiology is an unwholesome thing.

I believe I understand, at last, what inspires the feeling, prevalent among highbrows, that health or medical subjects are inappropriate in a family newspaper, for instance. These highbrows are—I must not say ignorant, but I may say uneducated in human physiology and medical hygiene, and the smatterings of misinformation they pick up from the quack and nostrum "literature" of the quack give them an unwholesome notion. The highbrow assumes an attitude in respect to popular health education which remains one of the prehistoric folk who call legs "limbs" if they belong to a feminine adult person.

A poor, misinformed woman had cancer, in the earlier stages of the disease she made the serious error which so many of her sisters make—sought and accepted the opinion of a "doctor" who told her that the symptoms were all due to "her age." Not until the disease had progressed beyond hope of a radical cure had she realized the error of her ways. The physician who told her that she was a "victim" of her age, was a truly modest and intelligent woman, engaged in private practice in the vicinity, he could scarcely afford to deny the fact that she was a "victim" of her age, even if he would. But in every community there is some wretch who, for a price, is willing to do just that. This wretch is the "quack" who visits from a woman of the town who seemed at first to bring merely sympathy. Presently, however, the visitor from the quack is seen to be a "victim" of her age, even if he would. But in every community there is some wretch who, for a price, is willing to do just that. This wretch is the "quack" who visits from a woman of the town who seemed at first to bring merely sympathy.

Albert Weisbord Sued by Woman For Heart Balm
New York, July 1.—(AP)—A breach of promise suit for $50,000 was filed today against Albert Weisbord, college graduate and leader of the Passaic textile workers, by Miss Rosalind Lapham.

Miss Lapham, whose address or identity was not revealed, stated in the papers that she had engaged Weisbord shortly after the strike started last February. She said that Weisbord gave her a ring, but later told her he never would marry her.

Weisbord in a statement issued at Passaic, branded the case as a "frame-up."

"The story is a lie," he said. "I have never heard of the lady."

Bankruptcy Hearing For Poultry Concern Delayed Until Today
By mutual agreement of attorneys, action on the petition to have a receiver in bankruptcy appointed for J. A. Kelley, missing Atlanta wholesale poultry dealer, was postponed Thursday until 9 o'clock Friday morning when the case was called before Judge Samuel H. Sibley in the federal district court.

Petition to have a receiver was presented Tuesday, June 29, and Thursday set as date for hearing. Sam Hewlett, attorney for three firms who seek to recover amounts aggregated $24,000, filed the petition.

Mr. Kelley mysteriously disappeared from his office on the afternoon of June 22. His wrecked machine was found the following day near Bolton, Ga., on the Chattahoochee river road. No trace of Kelley has been found, although a search was directed for several hundred yards below the bridge. Detectives have given up the theory that he has been murdered or that he has committed suicide.

WOMAN TAKES POISON; IN SERIOUS CONDITION
Mrs. B. R. Hutcherson, 29, of 940 North Boulevard, was taken to Grady hospital Thursday morning in a serious condition as the result of taking a quantity of bichloride of mercury, hospital attaches were told.

Quick work on the part of doctors at the hospital in administering an antidote and use of the stomach pump, probably saved the woman's life.

Mrs. Hutcherson was accompanied to the hospital by a young man whose identity was not learned by hospital attaches and he declined to discuss the case.

7 CONGRESSMEN ARE OPPOSED

Woman Victim Of Music Leader Dies of Wounds
Camden, N. J., July 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Harriet Vickers, 25, who was shot Tuesday by Paul W. Suersten, director of the Camden Philharmonic orchestra, after he had pleaded with her not to return to her estranged husband, died today at the Cooper hospital.

Mrs. Vickers was shot twice, both bullets entering her left breast.

To the police Suersten said he had loved Mrs. Vickers ever since he had met her several years ago while she and her husband were in Savannah, Ga., and he had applied to them for aid, when destitute.

They had cared for him and found him an employment. He said, "I explained his act in a letter which police found in his room saying: 'I loved the woman so immensely and respected her so highly, that I could not in all my life find a feeling toward any other person, and for that reason the act was done.'

200 REPORTED DEAD IN PADJANG QUAKE

GEORGIA EXPORTS SHOW BIG GAINS OVER LAST YEAR
Georgia's merchandise exports for 1925 totaled nearly $23,000,000 more than the figures for the previous year, according to statistics of the United States department of commerce, which maintains southeastern headquarters in Atlanta.

The figures reveal that Georgia climbed three places and finished among the 13 states boasting exports exceeding $20,000,000. Georgia's exports were valued at $107,713,349, New York led with valuations of $310,416,054, followed in order by Texas, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Michigan, Illinois, Virginia, Massachusetts and Georgia.

Georgia shipments of cotton to foreign markets during the year amounted to $82,521,010, while naval stores were worth $13,268,808. Other export items of lesser importance included manufactured cotton goods, cottonseed and meal, $968,379, and leaf tobacco worth $778,427.

Total exports for the United States amounted to $1,319,047,165 in 1925 as compared to $4,498,151,926 in 1924.

U. S. Airmen Reach Mukden On Globe-Circling Dash

BY LINTON WELLS.
Special Correspondent of The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance.
(Copyright, 1926, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Mukden, Manchuria, July 1.—We reached here safely this morning after a 420-mile trip by airplane from Harbin. At 8 o'clock we take a special train at Fusan, from there to proceed to Shimonoseki by boat and from there to Yokohama by train.

Unless we have extraordinarily bad luck we should now break the record for circling the globe by a week or more.

Harbin, Manchuria, June 30.—Delayed.—Tonight at 11:30 o'clock two tired world circlers stepped from a crack train at this place, exactly on their schedule. They were Edward S. Evans, Detroit millionaire, and myself.

For 14 days, 9 hours and 30 minutes we have been traveling to the east at the best speed of which man-made machines are capable. Tonight we are 10,000 miles from Broadway.

At Cherebours we were compelled to discard our carefully-planned itinerary to Moscow because of an emergency. Tonight we have discarded our previous plans for accomplishing this feat of our trip.

We were told, just as the train pulled out, that a plane would be available at Harbin tonight for a flight to Mukden, 420 miles to the south. We also learned that at Mukden both the South Manchurian and Chosen railroads operated by the Japanese, had placed special trains at our disposal, leaving at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to connect with our boat for Shimonoseki in Japan.

This course we decided upon, for while it increased our hazards by doubling the length of flight we had planned to attempt, it made the trip secure provided we won this last toss.

Early tomorrow morning we will know whether our adventure is to break John Henry Mears' record of 13 years standing or is doomed to failure.

Once in Mukden we have a 600-mile train trip to Fusan, a short boat ride across the Strait of Korea to Shimonoseki and the Japanese coast, and another ride to Yokohama, where our steamer, the Empress of Asia, will be waiting for us at 8:10 o'clock Saturday night.

Then we have only the trip across the Pacific and a plane dash across America before us.

Sokolov, American consul in Mukden, and Chan So Lin, Manchurian war lord, are the men whom we have to thank for planning and arranging our new scheme.

Russian, Chinese and Japanese officers and the people have taken a great interest in our trip and have done everything in their power to help us. Russians and Chinese dispensed with customs examinations and aided our efforts to procure tickets and to change our money.

All day today forging toward the finish we have been passing through the shallow valley to the broad fields of the plains of Korea. The great panorama was broken only by the distant beads of mountains and great oil refineries.

The stations are hives of moving color. The platforms are thronged with varied Mongolian types and with Russians who fled from bolshevism and settled in Manchuria to develop the infinite resources of the country.

With these exotic specimens are natives of every country under the sun engaged in one or another phase of the search for the eternal dollar.

The power of Chang So Lin has held this territory secure and prosperous against the attempts of all disturbers, Chinese or Russians.

CURTIS WILL ASK SENATE LIMIT CAMPAIGN FUNDS

denied direct control over primary expenditures. The only way the senate can exercise control is indirectly by refusing to seat anyone who spends more than is thought to be proper.

When Truman H. Newberry was seated, the senate adopted a resolution deploring his expenditure of $195,000 as dangerous to free government.

Some Objections Offered.

Some opposition may be registered to the contemplated plan on constitutional grounds but the proponents have collected a set of authorities beginning with the constitutional provision which makes each house the sole judge of the qualifications of its members.

This provision it is argued gives the senate the right to disqualify a man for excessive expenditures. Some object that the proposal seeks by the subterfuge of a senate rule to effect, in effect, legislation as to primaries.

Under the supreme court has held under the sole control of the states. Each case of eligibility must be treated on its own merits and not by blanket regulation in advance of the facts, some of the objectors say.

But it is the opinion of senate leaders that these objections will not stand in the way of action.

Doubt Effectiveness.

Some senators who intend to vote for the proposed restrictions doubt their complete effectiveness. One senator whose state has a limit of $10,000 on campaign expenses said several years ago spent $50,000, but told his associates in the campaign not to turn in their bills until after the 10-day period in which the statement of campaign expenses had to be filed. Many other devices for circumventing election laws are known and widely practiced in the trade. Nevertheless, such a resolution as is proposed in the senate will have a discouraging effect. The Pennsylvania disclosure already have had a tremendous moral effect.

"We don't need to adopt any resolution," one senator said. "Everybody already is sufficiently scared."

The subject came up in senate debate when Neely said in senate debate that the statement of campaign expenses was sufficient to compel immediate action on his resolution.

"The primary in Pennsylvania was nothing short of an assault on the citadel of liberty," Neely said.

His Direct Primary.

"I have no desire to defend conditions that have been discussed, but I want to say that it is due to the abominable system that exists," Reed, Pennsylvania republican, interrupted.

"Do you refer to the direct primary?" Borah asked.

"If the senator will compare the expenditures under Quay and the old convention system in Pennsylvania he will find little cause for consolation," Borah asserted.

"Why do primaries cost so much more in Pennsylvania than in other states?" asked Robinson, Arkansas, democratic leader.

"The lid is off in Pennsylvania and we are being held up to the ridicule of the nation," Reed said. "But you could take the lid off in the other 47 states, you would find the same conditions. There are 4,000,000 voters in Pennsylvania, and its costs six cents to get out a letter. If you sent one letter to each voter the cost of that alone would be $240,000."

Big Cost of Letters.

"Was the expense in Pennsylvania due to the excessive use of the mails?" Robinson asked.

"Not entirely, of course," replied Reed. "But every cent of Vane's personal expenditure of $71,000 went for letters."

"I want to say that I am unqualifiedly for the primary," Neely said. "If the nomination had been made in a convention these millionaires who contested at auction would have gone to Harrisburg and bought the members of the convention instead of going to the people."

"While no law may be strong enough to prevent corruption, the primary places more obstacles between corruptionists and a seat in the senate than any other system. The people will swim their horses in blood up to the bridge rears before they will submit to a return of the convention. It is easier to debauch 100 men in a convention than 4,000,000 in Pennsylvania."

"Doesn't the senator realize that a return to the convention system would be in line with the economy program?" asked Shipstead, farmer-laborite, ironically.

Would Sign Death Warrant.

"There isn't a senator up for reelection in New York," continued "who would say that he would vote for Vane. The senator who would say that would sign his own death warrant. I would not sign a death warrant for a man who would sign such a resolution and give the honest republicans of Pennsylvania a chance to nominate a new candidate who hasn't been debauched."

King, Utah, democrat, a member of the primary investigating committee, declared that corruption also has touched his own party in Pennsylvania.

"I regret to say that some democrats of Pennsylvania have yielded to blandishments, and have been corrupted. The organization has been prostituted and I want to condemn it."

Wheeler is Called.

Calling Wheeler the next witness after Tatro, Senator Reed announced that he hoped to complete his examination within a short time, but after two hours of cross-questioning, the chairman found that his list of questions was far from exhausted and he directed Mr. Wheeler to be on hand for the night session.

For half an hour the soft-spoken questions of the usually fiery Missouriian dealt only with the organization of the league and the charges of its controlling officers since 1895. Citing the constitution and by-laws in the intervening years, Senator Reed sought to show that the national superintendent has complete control of the selection of state superintendents.

Switching from this line of inquiry, Senator Reed developed that the league sought to control the election of judges in states where there is direct election of the judiciary; governors, legislators, congressmen and senators.

By this time Senator Reed had shed his coat and chewing on his inevitable cigar pined Wheeler with a volley of questions, revolving around the question of whether a man going into party primary is bound by that primary.

Wheeler said, "We believe it is a

Charleston, S. C., July 1.—(AP)—Work will start at once on the development of an aviation landing field at the Charleston Navy Yard, a telegram having been received there Thursday from the bureau of naval aeronautics to the effect that an allotment of $12,000 had been made for the purpose.

It is expected that the field which will furnish facilities for all planes landing and taking off, will be completed within several weeks, the tract set aside for the purpose measuring approximately 2,000 square feet.

ported from New York would not affect the Atlanta office. The various departments will continue to function with the same personnel as formerly, and the business of the office will be conducted as usual. The same lines as now are being followed, both in securing additional southern financing and in the sale of securities.

H. L. Morris, treasurer of the company; Paul T. Arnold, secretary, and Frank C. Eastman, vice president in charge of southeastern sales, all members of the Atlanta office staff, are at present in New York. They were guests Thursday night at an elaborate dinner given by 25 employees of the company to Mr. Miller at the Roosevelt hotel. The retiring president was presented with a handsome loving cup at the dinner.

Miller's Health Bad.

It was stated by local officials that Mr. Miller will devote the next month to clearing up financial matters pertaining to the transfer in his New York office; after which he will take an extended vacation in Florida and Europe in quest of renewed health.

It has been known to his friends for some time that he was in failing health and his release from business cares now presents him with the opportunity to take a much needed rest, it is said.

Among scores of big buildings in Atlanta which the G. I. Miller company has financed are the Henry Grady hotel, Pershing Point apartments, the Hurt building and the Wynne-Claughton building.

ture, Mr. Scott said. The mean temperature for the month was 75.3 degrees, as compared with a 1925 mean of 80 degrees, and an average June mean of 76.

Rainfall during the month was 4.21 inches. This is far above the 1925 June total of precipitation, which was only 1.45 inches. It will be remembered that last summer was an unusually dry one. June of this year was .33 of an inch in excess of the average rainfall.

The greatest 24-hour rainfall of the past month was 1.04 inches on June 19. The highest temperature was established on June 17 at 85 degrees. The lowest was 59 degrees on June 6.

While the last week or ten days have been cool, this is not unusual, according to Mr. Scott. Heavy rains and northeast winds caused the pleasant weather, he said.

"While July should not be as hot as the dry month of last year," Mr. Scott said, "I expect its temperatures to be approximately normal. Ordinarily July is a month of heat, rain and judging from the signs at the first day of the month, I believe it will run true to form."

manager for the association, gave testimony concerning their organizations.

Side Excursions.

At the day session the committee made a couple of side excursions into the operations in Pennsylvania of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and the discharge from the government service of Joseph A. Tatro, now special agent for the Pennsylvania alcohol permit board.

Charles S. Wood, national campaign manager for the wet organization, presented reports to show that the total expenditures of the Pennsylvania branch from last February 1 to June 16 were $13,756.16, a part of which went to the national headquarters of the association in Washington.

Defending himself against previous testimony that he had been dismissed as an agent of the internal revenue bureau "for the good of the service," Tatro presented a series of letters, in one of which he charged that there was a "conspiracy" to remove him from the bureau and a purpose to let certain important prohibition cases on which he then was working "evaporate."

Charge on Nolan.

The specific charge lodged against him in a letter by David Nolan, special agent in charge at Chicago, was that without "sufficient evidence" Tatro had told Assistant District Attorney Weist and United States Commissioner Mason that he was uncovered as an important case.

According to Nolan's letter, Tatro had told Weist that he would present in a short time "the largest case in the United States—case concerning around the alleged fraudulent withdrawal of 1,800 cases of whiskey and would involve United States Senator McKinley, a Mr. Willoughby, assistant district attorney, and other prominent politicians."

Replying to this letter, Tatro denied that he had made any such statements, charged a "conspiracy" to get him off the job because he was working on a big prohibition case, and asked for an accounting from District Attorney Clyne at Chicago on the ground that Clyne had violated his oath of office in repeating to Senator McKinley what Weist presumably had told him.

Wheeler Is Called.

Calling Wheeler the next witness after Tatro, Senator Reed announced that he hoped to complete his examination within a short time, but after two hours of cross-questioning, the chairman found that his list of questions was far from exhausted and he directed Mr. Wheeler to be on hand for the night session.

For half an hour the soft-spoken questions of the usually fiery Missouriian dealt only with the organization of the league and the charges of its controlling officers since 1895. Citing the constitution and by-laws in the intervening years, Senator Reed sought to show that the national superintendent has complete control of the selection of state superintendents.

Switching from this line of inquiry, Senator Reed developed that the league sought to control the election of judges in states where there is direct election of the judiciary; governors, legislators, congressmen and senators.

By this time Senator Reed had shed his coat and chewing on his inevitable cigar pined Wheeler with a volley of questions, revolving around the question of whether a man going into party primary is bound by that primary.

Wheeler said, "We believe it is a

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon reported today a government surplus of $377,767,816 for the fiscal year just closed.

A record collection of customs, totaling $379,430,000, and a record heavy income tax yield amounting to $1,982,040,088 swelled the treasury fund far beyond the needs of the government.

The $390,000,000 surplus recently forecast by President Coolidge for the year, which ended last night, failed to materialize, however, as a result of last month's record customs and a postoffice department deficit and tax refunds. At that, it was more than three times the total estimated by administration officials in February.

Expenses Were Less.

The total cost of government during the last 12 months, exclusive of debt retirement charges, was $3,097,611,822, a reduction of about $33,687,312 from the year previous.

The surplus was immediately applied by Secretary Mellon to retirement of the public debt, cutting it to $19,643,216,315, and making the total reduction in the debt for the year $972,973,722.

Income tax collections were $221,502,265 above those of a year ago, despite the reduction in rates provided by the new revenue law which was effective in the last two quarters of the fiscal year.

Miscellaneous taxes, many of which were repealed by the law, produced $355,000,280 for the year compared with $328,638,067 the year previous. Customs receipts a year ago totaled $547,561,226 or $31,868,000 less than a record collection of the year just ended. The previous high point for tariff receipts was reached in 1923, when $550,000,000 was collected.

General expenditures by the government last year totaled $1,826,726,923 compared with $1,837,004,475 during the previous 12 months. Other expenditures ran about the same, although the adjusted service certificate fund to take care of the soldiers' bonus required $120,150,000 last year as compared with $89,435,000 the year before. Tax refunds were $188,220,000 compared with $147,777,000 the previous year.

Interest Is Reduced.

As a result of the reductions made in the public debt Secretary Mellon indicated today that the interest on it this year would be $785,000,000 or $47,000,000 less than last year.

Mr. Mellon declared "the public debt structure has been materially strengthened" through the treasury operations last year. Of the $6,252,000,000 short term securities maturing within five years which were outstanding at the beginning of the year, $1,308,000,000 were either paid or funded for a long term during the year. The average rate of interest on the securities was reduced by 3.30 per cent on the new issues made during the year, a reduction of 25 per cent.

Discussing the surplus as compared with estimates some months ago Mr. Mellon said "sufficient weight was not given last November to either the increased efficiency of the internal revenue bureau which has brought in approximately $100,000,000 of back income taxes in excess of the amount estimated, or to the extent to which tax reduction was achieved by taxpayers, thus creating additional taxable income, and, consequently, an increase of government revenues in the last six months of the fiscal year by about $111,000,000 over the estimate." Increased receipts were attributed by him to the "continuation of the high level of prosperity in the country."

2 Prisoners Hurt

A free-for-all fight among prisoners in Fulton county tower late Thursday afternoon resulted in two men being so badly injured they were taken to Gray hospital for treatment. The fight is said to have followed a general argument among prisoners over the resentencing Thursday of Mel M. Gore to death for the murder of John W. Walton, 21, of Stamford, Conn., and C. E. Walters, of a Whitehall street address, were injured, a Fulton Blackhead barber, who is awaiting death in the electric chair on July 16 for his alleged participation in the murder of William H. Check, DeKalb county grocer, was in the midst of the battle but was not injured, it was said.

Although details of the affair had not been learned late Thursday night, county officials said that an investigation would be instituted today to ascertain instigators of the row. Gore, youthful Blackhead barber, who is awaiting death in the electric chair on July 16 for his alleged participation in the murder of William H. Check, DeKalb county grocer, was in the midst of the battle but was not injured, it was said.

sign of better citizenship to vote against those opposing our ideas than to vote for them."

"How about the law of honor among men?" asked Reed.

"The law of honor binds a man to support those principles in life that he believes in," retorted Wheeler.

Passed by House,
Pension Measure
Goes to President

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—A Senate bill providing increases of pensions to civil and Mexican war veterans and dependents at an estimated cost to the government of $15,000,000 annually was passed today by the house. The measure now goes to the president.

Under the bill it is estimated 53,000 civil war veterans now getting $50 a month would receive $65. Veterans receiving $72 a month would get $90, if totally disabled or blind, and it is estimated 20 per cent of the 56,000 men now on a $72 basis would be eligible for the increase.

The pensions of 26,000 widows of civil war veterans would be increased from $50 to $55 a month, while civil war nurses would receive $50 a month. Veterans of the war of 1812 and the Mexican war would be eligible for an increase from $30 to $35 a month.

CIVILIANS ON MEXICO

Rub a few drops on your hand. It's dry—in an instant. Feel its coolness and—see how this new gasoline vaporizes!

THE RAPIDITY with which a gasoline vaporizes is the criterion of its engine performance. You can see the new volatility of Texaco and feel it on your hand. You can do this with utmost safety as there is no poison in Texaco, and no injurious effects can come from contact with it. Texaco is dry in an instant and gone, with the sensation of cold that gauges its quick evaporation. Try it and see.

And in the engine, Texaco vaporizes completely at a lower temperature; it forms a dry gas in the manifold and equalizes cylinder distribution.

The easier start, quicker acceleration, reduced crankcase dilution, increased mileage, freedom from fouled spark plugs—all are the results of complete manifold vaporization.

The new Texaco is different from, and better than, any other motor gasoline that is on the market—a low initial point, a low end point, uniform always—with an anti-knock quality that is obtained without the addition of chemicals or poisons—therefore it is as safe to handle as any ordinary gasoline.

The Store All Women Know

Why Allen's Will be Closed All Day Saturday During July and August

On Saturday, July the third, Allen's will close its doors at one o'clock. Every remaining Saturday during July and August, Allen's will be closed all day. We think the public understands why we do this.

Store people have little time for recreation. Throughout the year while the average office is closing for the week at one o'clock on Saturday, it is necessary for store employees to work faithfully on. This they do uncomplainingly, week after week.

Are they not entitled to some recreation? We think so. We think the general shopping public thinks so, too. That is why, during July and August, when shopping is lightest and the inconvenience to you is practically nil, we close our store all day Saturday and give our employees the opportunity of making plans for week-end trips and recreation.

Can't We Depend Upon Your Personal Support of This Plan? Won't You Do All Your Shopping in the Five Remaining Days?

READ THE TRUTH ABOUT KILLING INSECT PESTS

Don't kill your pets when you kill insect pests!

Dare you use your present insecticide on your kitten, your bird, your dog, or other pets? Dare you use it where domestic animals may come in contact with it?

The 25c can of Bee Brand Insect Powder. It's easy to use. Blow the powder from a piece of paper. If habit is too strong and you prefer to use a gun, get our puffer gun—it only costs 10c.

Bee Brand Insect Powder is not a poison. It doesn't matter if your pets eat it for it won't hurt them. It will not harm flowers or plants; and of course, it is harmless to mankind.

It Kills Them! Bee Brand Insect Powder kills Flies, Fleas, Mosquitoes, Ants, Roaches, Water Bugs, Bedbugs, Moths, and Lice on Fowl and Plants and many other House and Garden Insects. Their doom is sealed the moment they breathe the tiny particles.

Yet woe to the insect that breathes its almost invisible particles! What a relief to have a sure insecticide that is harmless to everything except insects.

It Prevents Them! Housekeepers have learned that it is easier to prevent insects than it is to get rid of them. In a great many homes Bee Brand Insect Powder is used regularly as a part of the cleaning. Blow it in the air, sprinkle it in cracks and crevices. If there are insects there, "it kills them." If there are none, it prevents them. Get a can now and learn how easy it is to be free from insect pests.

Costs Less—25c You can pay large amounts for insecticides and for the costly apparatus that's required to use them, but you can't get greater effectiveness than we offer you in

In red, sitting-top cans, at your grocer's or drugstore. Household sizes, 10c and 25c. Other sizes, 50c and $1.00.

Carl Kubick, occupant of Wick's car when the accident occurred, also is suing the husband, seeking $2,500. Wick is suing Phillips Tice, a truck driver, for $2,500, charging him with blame of the mishap.

If everybody wins, Wick only loses $7,500—and that will still be in the family.

TWO MEN HELD KNOWN AS ROBBERS.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, July 1.—The police here suspect that Ascaso and Duretti, two men held by the Paris police and charged with plotting to assassinate King Alfonso of Spain, are the same ones who conspired in the Berlin heist several months ago. They are said to be members of a notorious international organization.

Following word from the Paris police that some of the plotters against King Alfonso had been arrested, Scotland Yard operatives chosen by the Spanish detectives accompanying the king, are guarding him against a possible assassination attempt.

The men who guard Alfonso are from the "political branch" of Scotland Yard and their work makes them familiar chiefly with spies and revolutionists. Their great concern right now is that the Spanish king, becoming bored with his detectives as he did in Paris, may decide to elude his bodyguard and take a trip by himself.

The king has been requested not to disclose any future engagements, but most of them already are known.

HARBORT REELECTED HEAD OF PYTHIANS

A Harbort was reelected chancellor commander of Empire Lodge No. 47, Knights of Pythias, Thursday night, for the semi-annual period beginning July 1. Other officers reelected are H. F. Ansley, vice chancellor; J. W. Dickerson, master of work; James L. Girardeau, master at arms; W. D. Beatty, inner guard; and Sol Clarke, outer guard. S. C. Will was elected prelate, succeeding J. E. DELAWARE RIVER BRIDGE OPENED BY 2 GOVERNORS

Philadelphia, July 1.—(AP)—The Delaware river bridge connecting Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., was formally opened to traffic this afternoon.

After simple ceremonies at each end of the bridge had been held in which Governor Pinchot, Pennsylvania; Governor Moore, New Jersey, and United States Senator Edge, New Jersey, participated, children loosened the ropes that barred progress and great streams of people from each side of the Delaware rushed across the structure, the longest suspension bridge in the world.

Veteran Forces Guest To Sing National Anthem

New York, July 1.—(AP)—"The Star Spangled Banner," words and all, rang through the hall of the New York Port society tonight at its annual "Uncle Sam night" celebration. Last minute efforts to delete the second and third verses failed before the demand of a veteran of the civil and Spanish wars for the entire text.

Mrs. Charles R. Scarborough, chairman of arrangements, previously had announced that the words of the anthem would be barred because "they were filled with hate." When a woman trumpeter rose and sounded the first notes of the anthem, the audience spontaneously burst forth with the words. Mrs. Scarborough, after standing silent a moment, joined in the singing of the verse. As the last note of the final verse died away, the audience cheered.

Prior to that the meeting nearly broke up in disorder, with Thomas Tuite, veteran of both the civil and Spanish-American wars, and general secretary of the Star Spangled Banner Association of America, threatening to leave the hall.

"There is no place for an American citizen," he shouted.

Mrs. Scarborough's announcement that the national anthem would not be sung but would be played by the trumpeter during the exercises was generally interpreted to mean the anthem would not be included in the program at all and brought forth numerous statements in its defense from members of the patriotic organizations.

One speaker, James Seth Morse, of the National Security league, said he would not speak if the anthem were not included in the program.

DR. LACY LEAVES ATLANTA TODAY FOR NEW DUTIES

Dr. Ben R. Lacy, Jr., pastor of the Central Avenue Presbyterian church here, will leave today for Richmond, Va., where he will assume the duties of president of the Union Theological seminary, a position which he accepted some weeks ago.

A farewell luncheon in honor of Dr. Lacy, to which were invited leading Atlanta ministers and friends of Dr. Lacy, was given at the Ansley hotel here recently.

Dr. Lacy, in expressing his appreciation of the luncheon, in collaboration with other civic organizations and friends of the pastor, said that such an affair honored not only him, but all ministers in Atlanta.

The sentence was imposed at the same time as the two-year term, but the court ruled they might not be served concurrently.

Inquiry Ordered Into Bread Trust Cases by Senate

Washington, July 1.—(AP)—Investigation of the federal trade commission and department of justice prosecution of the recent bread trust cases was ordered today by the senate. Its judiciary committee will conduct the inquiry, holding hearings during the summer recess if necessary.

The investigation was ordered on a resolution by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, which was based on charges made in the senate yesterday by Senator La Follette, progressive republican, Wisconsin, involving a consent decree entered recently at Baltimore in proceedings against the Continental Baking corporation.

HUNGARY PLANS SCHOLARSHIP FUND WITH SMITH SALARY

Budapest, Hungary, July 1.—The Jeremiah Smith scholarship fund, proceeds from which will send two Hungarian students to school in the United States, will be established by the government as a result of the return by Jeremiah Smith, of Boston, of his accrued salary of $80,000 as financial adviser to Hungary.

Mr. Smith, who came to Hungary by appointment from the League of Nations, advised the government to apply his donation to the Hungarian treasury, but the government feels that the gift can be better remembered if used as a scholarship fund.

INSTALLMENT XLVII

THE ALARM.

For a few minutes, perhaps, another five, nothing really startling happened. Intermittent flashes of an electric fire came from the vicinity of the bathhouse, but these were rather reassuring than otherwise. Indeed, Lord Oban's tall, slender figure was merged in the group of elms near the lodge when the shrill focus of a police whistle rent the silence. There is a peculiar resonance in the sound which conveys alarm. People who have never before heard it seem to recognize the signal instantly, just as during the war pheasants in Norfolk, which certainly had no prior experience of bomb-dropping Zeppelins, detected the rattling flight of these ill-omened machines while they were yet far out at sea and conveyed their excitement to all the furred and feathered population of the countryside.

Eileen and Betty were the first to take action. Telling a man-servant who was replenishing the drawing room fire that the call had come from the bathhouse and that he was to bring help there at once, they sped down the hill.

Lord Oban noted it just as promptly, but he was much farther away—all of five hundred yards—as he had passed through the wicket at the lodge and was crossing the small green. Here three men, newly alighted from a tourist car, were talking to some of the loungers still grouped under the oak. They detached themselves promptly and approached his lordship. One was tall and strongly built, one not so tall, but well proportioned, and the third quite diminutive, but very alert in his movements. He seemed to take the lead.

"Are you Lord Oban?" he said, and the question sounded rather like a challenge.

"Yes," said his lordship.

Stretched on the actual landing stage, John found the body of a man lying in an ominously relaxed state.

"Two of us are detectives from Scotland Yard," went on the little man rapidly. "The big fellow is Sir Arthur Frensham, a friend and former brother officer of your son's. We are here to secure the arrest of a man named Connington. The local constable is not at home, and—"

Again that piercing whistle sent forth its appeal.

"That must be he!" snapped the speaker. "Where is the sound coming from?"

Too surprised to do other than answer directly, Lord Oban said it came apparently from the landing stage.

"Is there a road?"

"Yes, a sort of a road."

"Can we get there in the car?"

"I think so."

"Will you guide us?"

"Willingly. I have not the least notion what is going on. I—well, it is idle to explain now why I happen to be in the village. . . . By the way, the man Connington you speak of went away from Inverlochit this afternoon."

They were seated in the car by this time. Frensham, at the wheel, was hidden behind the bridge below the village. He had passed within a few yards of it when coming in from Mallaig.

"Are you sure of that?" the small man demanded abruptly.

"Of course I am. What possible motive could I have in misleading you, especially if, as you claim, you represent the London police?"

"It is not for me to analyze motives at this moment. But I do want you to be certain of your facts. Connington has not gone back to Mallaig since he left there today. Could he have got away by some other road?"

"A most difficult moorland track, negotiable only on foot or by a pony."

"Where is your son staying?"

"This brought up his lordship with a round turn.

"Really, Mr. . . ." he began haughtily.

"Furneaux—Detective Inspector Furneaux, of the criminal investigation department. My colleague is Detective Sergeant Sheldon. . . . So you don't know where your boy is?"

"I did not say that."

"Then where the devil is he?"

"At the postoffice, I believe. But I must warn you, Mr. Furneaux—"

"That I am not being sufficiently polite, and that if I am not careful you may have to report me to the commissioner. Go right ahead; he's used to the formula. He would wonder what was wrong if he didn't hear at least once a week that I had stuck a long and torturing pin into some noble prop of the British constitution like yourself. . . . Sacre nom d'un pipe! They're hard at it now, and we're miles away! Never mind your springs, Sir Arthur! Get us over this cursed road quickly or we may be too late."

Furneaux's sudden explosion into wrath was caused by a third shrill blast on the whistle, which, however, ceased instantly when two gunshots, fired in quick succession, not only sounded like miniature thunder claps, but woke into raucous activity all the bird life of the glen. The rooks, in particular, filled the air with their clamor. They silenced even Furneaux, while Lord Oban was so agitated that he could neither speak nor think. Frensham had to switch on his headlights and the car was promptly attacked by a pair of frenzied owls. In the twinkling of an eye Inverlochit had been roused from the sleep of ages.

Now what had actually happened, subject to certain quite tragic limitations due to complete lack of knowledge on the part of some of the principal actors in a series of exciting events, was this:

John Pantom, his pipe alight, waited on the path a few indecisive seconds. Neither Betty nor Eileen had kept the tryst, which was hardly to be expected in the conditions. He was minded to turn back, but Spot was strangely excited, and growled, not once or twice, but in a steady crescendo of excitement. Such a warning was not to be ignored. John stooped, adjusted the leash which he was carrying, and said in a low tone:

"Good dog! Seek him, then!"

Who or what it was that had so excited an animal which never made a mistake when possible danger threatened John could not guess. Possibly a deer had strayed down from the hills, bent on foray among the village gardens. If that were so, Spot must be held off by main force. So on went the two, with Campbell trailing warily in the rear. He, of course, was utterly belogged: This time he had heard neither Spot's eager whining nor Pantom's command. All he knew was that now or never he might ascertain the cause of this lakeside ramble by a man who trod the very land he would one day inherit as though inspired by some hidden if not sinister purpose.

John moved far more rapidly than the policeman, because Spot was tugging at the leash, and seemed to have a most definite objective in or near the bathhouse. And, indeed, the dog's instinct was most dreadfully justified. Stretched on the actual landing stage, John found the body of a man lying in an ominously relaxed state. He seemed to know intuitively that it was Alistair. The plump limbs, the evening dress, the verni shoes which glistened faintly in the fast fading light, suggested not only a member of the house party at Inverlochit, but the lifelong enemy whom he had so hungered to meet and maul with his ten fingers. He could not be quite certain, because the limp form was turned partly on its face and breast, with arms sprawled out anyhow, and legs crumpled up as though in a final contortion of agony. So, taking a double turn of Spot's leash round his left wrist, he knelt, struck a match, put a hand under the palsied head, and stared into the unseeing eyes of Alistair!

New York, July 1.—A further slight decline at the opening of the cotton market today was followed by a rally on covering in preparation for tomorrow's government report. October closed up from 16.20 to 16.45 and sold at 16.42, compared with 16.20 at the close yesterday. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 3 to 15 points, except for September, which was 45 points net higher.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 5 points under renewed liquidation with a little southern and local selling promoted by continued favorable weather and crop advice. Offerings were much lighter after the liquidation of yesterday, however, and the market soon turned steadier on covering. The condition was evidently taken as indicating that the technical position had been strengthened by the decline of the previous day, and it did not require much buying to rally prices.

July sold up from 17.52 to 18.00 and December from 16.19 to 16.35, net advances of 12 to 15 points on the active positions. There appeared nothing in the weather or crop news to stimulate buying, except for the covering movement, and demand tapered off at the higher prices. Later fluctuations were rather irregular with the market generally quiet, but there were little spurts of covering on setbacks, and last prices were within 3 or 4 points of the best on new crop positions. July closed at 17.91 and December at 16.31.

A canvass of New York Cotton exchange members today showed an official condition report of about 76.5 is expected tomorrow. The highest estimate of the condition was 80 and the lowest of 65 estimates by members was 74. Some private reports reaching here said recent rains had stimu-

PRICES UPWARD AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, La., July 1.—Cotton market today was a typical pre-rum affair with trading largely restricted to evening-up in advance of the government condition and a-rage report to be issued tomorrow morning. As the market was rather overvalued, most of the evening-up was by nervous shorts covering, hence the general trend of prices was upward.

The few reactions due to belated long liquidations were of small consequence. After a slight early decline to 3 to 4 points the market worked upward, steadily reaching the high points of the day right at the end when prices were 21 points above the low of the day.

The close was at or near the high, showing net gains for the day of 10 to 15 points.

There were no additional private crop reports during the day but the average guess of the members of the New York exchange as to the government condition was 76.5.

Prices opened steady and unchanged to 1 point up in sympathy with rather better cables. Prices eased off right after the opening, but by 10 o'clock they were 15 to 20 points above the early low. The close was virtually at 17.91 and December at 16.31.

Exports for the day totaled 48,700 bales.
